HENRY GRAYE

St. George's Building

2nd Floor

HE knew, even as he turned into the Street of the Tentmakers, that a trap had been set for him. Something about the clusters of dark men in their dirty burnouses, the eyes watching him from shadowed doorways yet avoiding contact with his own gaze.
But the Son of Eric the Dane was not one to evade combat, no matter how unequal.

He strode on, his tall body moving easily, casually as ever, and bringing into the fetid air some essence of the great clean winds of the sea. The sea which was calling him to-day, his three ships laden and ready to leap away from this strange, hot harbour. There remained only to bring The Star.

Provided, of course, that these sun-black devils were not too much for him!

His fingers tingled pleasantly as they gripped the half of the heavy blade under his cloak. He was nearly at the end of the street
when he turned swiftly and flashed it in the sunlight. His keen eyes had detected the shadow just in time. Blood covered the sword as it swung to meet the rest of them, closing in warily.

He stepped backward toward the wall. If none of those gleaming knives found their way into his back, he could take care of them in front. The sword at the end of his long arm kept the attackers in a large semicircle.

A knife came singing to graze his shoulder, another spun harmlessly from the metal sheathing of his helmet. Something fanatical crept into their eyes and he awaited their rush.

Then they were close about him and the heavy sword was biting deep into flesh. From his belt came the short ax and his other hand slashed out with it exultantly. The knives found him, but not seriously, and their scratches acted upon him like spurs on a charging mount.

Sometimes it seemed he would not get the sword out in time to meet the next one, so lusty were his strokes. But suddenly they were running, three of them. The rest lay quiet, or writhed in the dust of the narrow street.

He stepped over them carefully, pausing to wipe the sword and ax on the robes of one before he went on. He entered the door at the end of the street, passed through the scented courtyard, and opened the door beyond which she would be.

Men called her The Star, which was not strange. Except that no star was ever so glimmeringly beautiful.

To the Son of Eric she had been a mystery, for in this land where women knew only hidden lives in groups imprisoned by their masters she lived alone with servants and a show of power. He had heard it whispered that she was under the protection of the Sultan and now he knew that it must be true. But it would be true no longer—she had consented to leave this fantastic, sun-baked country and go with him to his land far north.

He flung the curtains aside and peered into the room's cool darkness. Soon his eyes became accustomed to the gloom and he saw her and went toward her, but suddenly he noticed that she was shrinking away. It had not occurred to him that she would be frightened by the blood which daubed him. He laughed loudly to show her that it was of no consequence; a woman of his own country would have thought nothing of it.

A woman of his own country for the first time in many days he thought of Swenda, his wife. Tall and strong,
with pale hair in which she could stand as if clothed, it was almost as if some magic had brought her into this close room so heavy with perfume.

Then she was there no longer and he was looming over the shrinking native woman, over the dark eyes big with fear. A sensation of distaste rose in him.

"Come!" he ordered harshly.
"We must hurry! By this time the hired dogs have reported to him and I may have to fight again."

For a moment longer the frightened eyes stared into his,
then a moan broke from her and she flung herself face downward on the cushioned couch.

Now, watching the huts of his father's village as the dragon ships slipped toward the shore, he was glad that he had found out in time what sort she was. He was glad that she was not to be with him when he came again to the welcoming arms of Swenda.

His wife was not with the crowd of villagers on the beach, and he made his way through them rudely, and almost ran through the town and up the hill at the other side. His father's house stood in the next valley. Then he reached the top and his heart began to pound as he saw her coming toward him, tall and strong and pale-haired.

Swenda... his wife!

Part II

Dale Ericson learned on the rail of the little island boat, the fresh sea wind ruffling coolly through his short blond hair. In an hour he would be with Chris and the children. His fingers tightened a little as he thought how near he had come to losing them. What a fool he had been!
Of course, there had been some excuse for what he had done.
Chris would be the first to point that out. He had been harassed and worried about the mills, there had been a need for comfort and encouragement, and she not there to give them to him.

They—he and Chris and the two youngsters—had been ready to leave for the island off the Maine coast where they, always spent their summers. Reservations had been made, luggage packed, and then he had received the first faint hint of what Gul-brandt and the Board were attempting.

"They won't get away with it!"
he had told her. "I'll fight them to the last ditch."

She had accepted the thing without a murmur, as if she had not been looking forward to their vacation for weeks. It had been he who had first thought of that angle.

"You take the kids and go on up. We don't want their summer spoiled. I'll come as soon as I can."

However, that hadn't been very soon. Weeks had passed in the struggle to regain controlling stock interest and there had been times when his fight seemed almost hopeless. It was on one of these despairing days that he had found Chloe.

"Don't you know anyone who will let you come in out of the rain?"

Ericson looked up wonderingly
at the girl who had halted on the streaming path in front of him.
She was pretty, he saw that at once.

"Or perhaps no one thought to tell you about the weather." The brown eyes glistened as she said it.
"I guess that's it," he said. The rain hadn't seemed very important, but now he stood up.

"You haven't answered my question."

"About having no plate to go?
Well, as a matter of fact, I have a hotel room."

"So you sit on a park bench and get soaked to the skin! You must have a lot on your mind."

"I have," he said simply. Eric-son had never been very articulate, and now some instinct was warning him that the less he had to do with her, the better. But inwardly he laughed at that. This vivid young person was not the casual "pick-up" type.

They were walking along now, she matching his long stride quite naturally and allowing him to pilfer her around tuddles. He decided that he would tell her about the mills. It would be something like talking it over with Chris.
"I like rain," he told her, "although I do not usually sit around in it. But right now I am bothered about something."

Her eyes studied his face as she waited for him to go on.
"You see," he explained, "I am president of a corporation, Steel."

"You don't look very old," she said. "I thought all steel magnates had gray beards and hardening of the arteries."

He chuckled. "Maybe I'm older than I look. Anyway, it's more or less of a hereditary position.
My father had it until last year, when he died."

"The chairman of the board of directors is a man named Gul-brandt," he went on, suddenly moved to confide his problem. "He is very powerful and he saw to it that I was elected to succeed my father. It seems that he thought he would be able to control me to serve his interests."

"Which are not always unseel-fish?" she murmured.

"Very seldom. Just at present it would serve his interests best if the mills were closed down instead of meeting the men's demand for a wage increase which I believe to be entirely fair."

"Is he a hard man to fight?"
"Right now," he admitted, "it looks as if he is going to be too much for me. He has the directors under his thumb."

They had reached his hotel.
He paused uncertainly.
"Is this where you are staying?"
the girl asked.

"Yes." He wished vainly for the ability to read her mind. "If you don't mind waiting in the lobby while I go up and change into some dry clothes, we might have dinner together."

Smilingly she shook her head.
"I'm sorry, but I have an engagement for the evening."

"Then how about to-morrow evening?"

She hesitated only briefly. "I think I'd like it."

Her name was Chloe Abbott.
"Lonely female, tag end of a long line of Abbotts," she told him the next evening as they followed a waiter to a table Ericson had reserved.

And during the course of the evening he learned more about her, that her parents had died while she was at college, that she was now someone's secretary, and that she lived in a small apartment not six blocks from his hotel.

In return he told her about himself, especially the thing he thought she should know first.

"I'm just an old married fellow," he announced. "I hope you won't let that scare you away."

"I'm not easy to scare, Mr.
Ericson."

So he talked considerably about Chris and the children, little stories about them that he hoarded in his heart; it rather surprised him to find himself sharing them with this girl.

She reached across the table and touched his hand. "I know how you must feel," she said.

Before long he was telling her more about the struggle with Gul-brandt.

"Don't get the idea that I am doing anything wonderful in fighting for the men," he warned her seriously. "It's just that I used to be one of them. Dad saw to it that I experienced manual work in the mills before he allowed me to step into an official job."

She was a good listener and the questions she asked from time to time showed that she was interested in this thing which seemed so important to him. He felt more confident than he had in weeks.

In the days that followed he sought her companionship with increasing frequency. They were days of worry and stress, dark days when only her reassurance could convince him that the struggle was not altogether hopeless.

Since his life with Chris had begun he had felt no need to cultivate the acquaintance of other women or pay them any close attention. So it was not surprising that he had no conception of what was happening to him until it was too late. He convinced himself easily that Chris would not object to such a calm, intelligent friendship as this.

Until one day it came to him with a shock that his contacts with Chloe had come to mean a great deal more than that. Something that he would have scoffed at as impossible had occurred to him. He was in love with her.

For a week or more he avoided her. He could think of no other way than to cut their growing bonds as cleanly and decisively as possible. But he could not excise the restless pain that was in him, the longing for a glimpse of her or the sound of her voice.

"Chris doesn't really need me," he said. "She has the children and a great family of relatives.
You are alone. You need someone.
Chris will give me a divorce..."

She whispered a protest, but he stilled her lips with his own.
It was their first kiss.

The next day, as if the Fates had decided to climax everything at once, Gulbrandt capitulated. In a snarling outburst over the phone he admitted defeat.

"You don't know what you're up against!" he raged. "You'll find this a costly victory!"

SHEER bluster, Dale told himself. A great jubilation welled in him as he realized that the mills would continue to operate. Exultant, he called Chloe.

But her voice was strained and tired.

"Dale, I'm ill. Can you come over?"

"Right away, dear."
He found her huddled on the divanport in his living room clad in a negligee.

"I'm glad you've come," she sobbed. "I feel so utterly wretched. Please put me in on my bed.
It's so uncomfortable here."

Obediently he picked her up and carried her into the bedroom.
Afterwards he was to laugh at himself for being so easy a victim of the ruse. As he put her down on the bed the closet door opposite swung open suddenly. There was a quick, brilliant flash and then a young man with a camera emerged.

"You ought to go on the stage, baby," he smirked at Chloe. "His wife's going to treasure this picture!"

A moment later he was sprawled on the floor, groaning faintly.
Dale's knuckles were bloody as he tore the plate from the camera and shattered it against the foot of the bed. The camera he hurled out a window.

"Gulbrandt can buy him a new one!" he muttered savagely. "It was Gulbrandt who arranged this, wasn't it?"

She cowered away from him fearfully, but her fascinated, staring eyes told him that he had guessed correctly. Suddenly he laughed and turned away.

The exultant strong release of that laugh was still with him as he studied the crowd of villagers and summer people on the dock.

Chris was not among them—she never had been able to get anywhere quite on time. As soon as the gangplank was down he made his way ashore and started up the beach. Then he mounted a little slope and saw her coming toward him, a tall, straight girl with honey coloured hair.

"You know, Chris," he chuckled
a while later, "I had a funny feeling when I first saw you that all this—my leaving the boat and crossing the hill and you coming toward me, even the wind in my face and the sand crunching and the gulls—well, that it had all happened before!"

Her hand tightened in his as they laughed at the odd idea.

FOUR YEARS WITH ULCERATED STOMACH

Now feels "different altogether"

If you endure the terrible agony of ulcerated stomach—or if you have suffered from the pain of other gastric ills, flatulence, wind, indigestion—you will understand the joy with which Mr. W. H. H. wrote this amazing letter:

"For nearly four years I have suffered from ulcerated stomach. I am a waiter, so you can understand how I have suffered—on the go for 12 to 14 hours each day. Sometimes I could have screamed with pain whilst waiting on the guests. Each year I have had to leave my work as I could not carry on. Not long ago I got a bottle of your Powder and since taking it I feel different altogether."

This is typical of the letters continually being received by Maclean's.
Sufferers who had given up all hope, whom even operation had failed to cure, tell of the marvellous results they have experienced even from the very first dose of Maclean Brand Stomach Powder.

Follow their example, and be absolutely certain to ask for Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, the one with the signature "ALEX. C. MACLEAN" on the bottle. There are inferior substitutes at lower prices, but they are not worth the risk to your health.

RIFLES RETURN TO FORM WITH 4 TO 0 WIN OVER EAST LANCES.

Club Fare Poorly Against Fusiliers

SOUTH CHINA WIN FOR FIRST TIME

ATHLETIC TOO FAST FOR ROYAL NAVY

POLICE UNLUCKY AT KOWLOON

VISITORS to Chatham Road yesterday were treated to a display of football skill and team organisation seldom seen in everyday football when the Rifles defeated the East Lances by four clear goals in their senior League soccer encounter.

The Rifles, with memories of their defeat at the hands of St. Joseph's last week, functioned like a well-oiled machine to prove that as exponents of the organised passing game they have few equals in the Colony.

In a forward line in which perhaps the only weak link was Doherty, who was slow on occasions to seize his chances, Campbell stood out as the presiding genius, while Hartigan and Erwin undoubtedly proved worthy of claims to inclusion in the Army team next week.

Miller and McConigal were prominent in the intermediate line, while Stevens was undoubtedly the pick of the backs. The East Lances were suffering under a severe handicap in the absence of Ridings and Eckersley, the former being on the sick list from injuries received in the last Wai Cup game last week. The forward line, which was never impressive, included O'Donnell, a newcomer, and Tuley, promoted from the second eleven. Both appeared to be bewildered by the speed and accuracy of the Rifles' combination, while Sandford undoubtedly missed the help of Ridings on his left.

Griffen on the right was worthy of more opportunities, and a mediocre defence was further upset by the indiscriminate play of Swain.

The Rifles were on the offensive almost from the kick-off and Campbell netted the Rifles' first goal very early in the game, this being followed a few moments later by a second when Ferguson headed in a pass from Erwin. The third goal resulted when Swain, in an effort to deflect a powerful shot from Erwin, sent the ball into his own goal. In the second half Miller scored five minutes before time, after a goal by Ferguson had been disallowed for offside.

South China Win
Enforced changes in the composition of their team made Recrolo an easy mark for South China "A" at Caroline Hill yesterday, and the fact that the Portuguese only finished up losers by two goals to nil is ample testimony of the ill luck which dogged the footsteps of the South China attack.

At least a dozen times in each half the Chinese missed goals by the merest fraction and this, coupled with the knowledge that R. Marques, in the Recrolo goal, gave one of his best displays this season, accounts for the low score. Choo Siew-hong, in the Chinese goal, was only called upon a matter of four times during the whole of the match, as, with the exception of Gomes at inside-left, the whole of the Recrolo forward line was sadly off form.

The match was a personal triumph for the Chinese inside forwards, who bewildered their opponents with swift passing movements which suggested that they had been well-planned beforehand. There were several occasions when Fung King-cheung and Lai Shui-wing participated in bouts of passing from the half-way line and no Recrolo player touched the ball until Marques was called upon to pull off a brilliant save. Two Kwai-ahing and Tay Quee-leung did not enjoy as much of the play as they usually do, but on the few occasions that the ball went down the wings, the two flanks men were never at a loss for a touch of originality.

Fung King-cheung opened the scoring after 25 minutes and 10 minutes before full time Lai Shui-wing made the issue safe for South China.

Almost on time the Chinese were awarded a penalty for an alleged foul, but Fung King-cheung struck the upright with his shot and the ball went out of play.

Fusiliers At Their Best
Yesterday's meeting between the Fusiliers and Club at Soekunpo was a disappointing affair, disappointing in that the Club, playing a good deal below their usual standard, provided poor opposition to a stylish display by their opponents.

The Fusiliers were well worth full points, which they gained by virtue of two clear goals, scoring once in each half of the game through Sullivan and Evans respectively.

The real secret of their success was their quickness on the ball, rapid interchanging of position and well nigh perfect anticipation. Talbot, filling the role of centre-half, was the prime initiator, being seconded by Taylor, Wanklyn, Dennis and Sullivan.

Another outstanding feature of the Fusiliers' success was seen in their dogged marking of the Club's danger men—Taylor kept a tight hold on Fowler and Wanklyn had Bickford 'in his pocket', while Talbot, backed by Keating and Wheeler, blocked the way down the centre. The forwards were splendid up to a point—that point being in their failure to round off the results of clever and scheming approach movements, although the splendid goalkeeping of Rodger, who saved his charge well on more than one occasion, had something to do with this.

Rarely have the Club been seen to such poor advantage, but some extension may be found in the fact that they were forced to make several positional changes, consequent on the non-appearance of Hill and Fleming, while for most of the second half they were only ten strong, Elliot having been ordered from the field shortly after the interval for, apparently, arguing with the referee.

Wilson was the 'star man' of the Club team, playing a 'Trojan' game throughout, while Nichols and Strange (S) both put in creditable performances.

Athletic Deserve Win
The Navy proved a very disappointing side to watch against the clever Athletic players on the Causeway Bay ground yesterday, and lost by a solitary goal in their premier league encounter scored by Lee Tak-kee in the first half.

Wolverson, the Navy left-back, was the outstanding member of the Navy team, and indeed appeared to be the only one with any sense of direction in his kicking. Athletic scored the only goal of the match and it says much for the Navy defence that the nippy centre and inside forwards never reached their objective half a dozen times.

Kowloon Were Lucky
At Kowloon yesterday a draw would have been a more fitting climax to the First Division Soccer game between Kowloon and the Police. The Police, were, without doubt, an unlucky side to retire losers by the odd goal in three after a keen struggle in which they did the majority of the pressing.

Kowloon became disorganised between the halves and the backs when the Police, adopting forceful rather than stylish methods, burst through time and again in the opening period, only to find Minhinnett, the Kowloon goalkeeper in splendid form. It was, in fact, largely due to his fine display, that Kowloon were not at least two goals down before the interval. It was at times a disappointing game, for it showed two teams who are capable of playing really good football serving up poor fare at not infrequent periods.

The Police attack was unbalanced, most of the movements taking place on the left, so that Pile was starved almost throughout the game, which meant that O'Connor, Kowloon's left-half was left free to assist the much over-worked Boyd.

Green was the best of the Police forwards, his ball control and the manner in which he distributed it serving as a stimulant to the ever-energetic Moss, the Police leader, but whenever Moss attempted to break through, he was, almost invariably, checked by Everett and Bowen who closed in on him very effectively.

Knox, Kowloon's sharpshooting centre forward, had very little scope from North who proved an excellent "policeman" in more ways than one.

The last twenty minutes saw Kowloon taking advantage of the situation and after two fine saves by McHardy, Knox eventually crashed one past him. Two minutes afterwards, the same player, standing well placed, took advantage of a short pass from V. White, who had up to this time played a very ordinary game, and sent in a powerful drive that left McHardy hopelessly beaten. A strong rally by the Police in the closing minutes saw Moss reduce the score.

SECOND DIVISION Navy Juniors

The Athletic were faced with a class of football they had not anticipated when they met the Navy in their Second Division soccer encounter at Causeway Bay yesterday, and must thank Lee Kwok-ki, their goal-keeper, that their defeat was not heavier than 4 goals to 2.

The Navy forwards were remarkably fast and their short passing bouts were delightful to watch. The Athletic defence was fairly sound against the Navy's tactics and Lee Kwok-ki brought off some very fine saves. The Athletic forwards never really fell into their stride, their rare half-hearted attempts never going beyond Hills and Laundon, the Navy backs. The Navy halves were particularly good, being an indefatigable trio of workers. Spencer (3) and McCloud netted for the Navy, while Hui In-kwong and Ip Ki-wing found the Navy's net late in the second half.

Kowloon Defeated
Playing a superior type of football, the Chinese Police thoroughly deserved their win over Kowloon Juniors by 3 goals to 1.

The Kowloon team could not combine, although there were several outstanding individuals, particularly the two wingers W. Knox and Phat, the latter being very tricky.

Ho Sing-chung, Chan Kwong-yu and Ip Lai-yu scored for the winners, while Chang Kam had the misfortune to score into his own goal to give Kowloon their only goal.

S. China Rout Lyemun
At Caroline Hill yesterday Lyemun lost to South China by 5 goals to 1, although they shared two goals at the interval.

The quick thrusts of the Chinese attack played havoc with the Lyemun defence, but the chief reason for the soldiers' failure lay in the inability of their halves to feed their forwards.

Chow Wing-hong (3), Wong King-cheung and Cheung Sing-cheung scored for the Chinese, while Knight scored for Lyemun.

East Lances, Falter
Scrappy play and wasted opportunities featured the Second Division soccer encounter at Chatham Road yesterday when the Rifles defeated the East Lances by two clear goals.

Brown and Killen were prominent in the Rifles' attack, and Killen opened the scoring before the interval. Cochrane scored the Rifles' second goal with a feeble shot in the second half.

Club Overwhelmed
Fielding an exceptionally strong eleven the Fusiliers overwhelmed the Club in their Second Division encounter at Soekunpo, winning by eight clear goals.

Harrison (8) Grindley (8) and Conkley (2) were the scorers for the Fusiliers, who scored three times before the interval.

THIRD DIVISION

Four Penalties: Two Goals
After a very keen and even game, Recrolo overcame the R.A.S.C. in their Third Division encounter by the odd goal in three, the game being remarkable for the number of penalties conceded, and of the four awarded, three to Recrolo and one to the Service Corps, each side converted once.

Reids and Ribeiro (penalty) scored for Recrolo, while Bell (penalty) replied for the Service Corps, who lost Roberts, owing to an injury, in the first half.

Liga Beat East Lances.
At Prince Edward Road Liga succeeded in defeating the East Lances by 4 goals to 3.

C. Santos (3) and H. Souza netted for the winners, while Crossley, Radcliffe and Crooks scored for the soldiers.

Airmen Overwhelmed
At King's Park the Royal Army Ordnance Corps defeated the Air Force by 8 goals to 1.

Waters (2) Attoe (3) Duffell and Whetton scored for the Ordnance, while Thomas had the misfortune to score into his own goal. Hillier netted for the Air Force.

Medicals Too Good
The R.A.M.C. were too strong for St. Joseph's at Happy Valley and easily won by four clear goals. Yould (3) and Harrison were the goal-scorers.

Kwong Wah Beaten
At Prince Edward Road the Fusiliers were too strong for Kwong Wah, defeating them by 5 goals to 1.

Tatler (3), Jones (2) and Roberts scored for the Fusiliers, while Leung Ping-kam netted for the losers.

CLUB AVENGE RUGBY DEFEAT LAST SATURDAY

Army Fifteen Outplayed

BUTCHER'S INSPIRATION

The Club fully avenged their recent Rugby defeat at the hands of the Army first fifteen when they won a hard-fought and scrappy game at the Valley yesterday by two goals and a penalty goal (13 points) to nil, after leading by 8 points to nil at the interval.

Bidwell's appearance among the threequarters undoubtedly had much to do with the result of the game, some very fine attacking movements with Chadwick being witnessed, Bidwell's handling at all times was superb and his speed evenly matched that of the best among the Army backs, although Floyd's brilliant defence prevented him from scoring.

Van Leeuwen was seen at his best in many splendid runs down the touchline, one of which culminated in a very fine opening try. The Club's defence was rocklike.

Grieve giving a fine display and making full amends for his showing last week at Soekunpo.

Fine Understanding
One of the outstanding phases of the game was the fine understanding between Bonnar and Butcher, the latter being at his best, while Bonnar was a trifle too fast for Preeco.

Unlike the first game, it was the Club forwards who held the upper hand yesterday, heading quickly in the set scrums.

There is no doubt that the Army miss-Lt. Rice-Evans and L/Cpl. Davies, and until they return their main line of attack will not be strong or fast enough to withstand the pace of the Club backs.

Floyd and Lewis were the pick of the Army backs, the former's brilliant defence and the latter's kicking being their best assets, while Lt. Lincoln and Morgan were the best of the forwards, although Harrison was always to the fore and put in an enormous amount of work in defence.

The Scoring
Van Leeuwen broke away after Grieve had drawn Boyling, and the Club right-wing threequarter swerved past Barry and grounded between the posts for Watson to add the points.

Just before the interval Watson converted a penalty goal for offside.

The second half of the game saw both sides go very near to scoring on several occasions, Butcher eventually breaking through to send Bradford over the Army line near the posts for Bidwell to convert with a good kick.

NERVES soothed and Revitalised NATURALLY

No drugs--Non habit-forming

Countless thousands know the misery of "NERVES."
Upset by the least little thing, worn out by the slightest exertion, is there any bane of modern life so distressing?
Yet really the cure of "Nerves" is simple. Not by drugs —for drugs bring only temporary relief—but by a purely natural and harmless remedy.

Phillips Yeast gives you permanent relief

Take a little with your meals and you will be amazed how rapidly and naturally your Nerves are soothed and revitalised.
Depression and Insomnia disappear and you will laugh at the worries that once seemed so much to you. At the same time your Digestion will improve, and you will feel an entirely different man or woman, full of life, Vigour and Energy.

Mr. J. M. Eastcheap, London, writes, 25th July, 1935. "I have been a constant user of Phillips Yeast for some time and have found it to be of incalculable value. In fact I could not now do without it. I am happy to say I am now revitalised and re-energised.
I have regained my lost appetite and generally feel better than I have done for years past.
To those who are suffering from nervous exhaustion, loss of appetite and kindred troubles,
I heartily advocate Phillips Yeast."

Mr. E. L. Trickett, London, writes, 25th April, 1935. "Having received such wonderful results after trying two 9/ bottles of Phillips Yeast, it is with pleasure I write this letter. Fourteen months ago, through over-work, I had a nervous breakdown, and even up to two months ago I had sleepless nights, very heavy all day and could not concentrate. Now I am myself again and shall continue with the treatment, for it is worth its weight in gold."

Take PHILLIPS YEAST with your meals
... Neurasthenia and other Nerve troubles will worry you no more.

S. CHINA TEAMS IN ACTION TO-DAY

Exciting Match On Club Ground

The outstanding feature of today's sport is the First Division League football match between South China "A" and the Kowloon Chinese, which will take place on the Club ground, commencing at 4 p.m.

South China are fielding the identical eleven which secured both points from Club de Recreio yesterday, while the Kowloon Chinese have a newcomer at right-back, Chan Cho-sheung, who will partner Mak Shu-hon. The former is a Canton Navy player of some repute and will probably give the League champions' right-wing partnership cause for anxiety.

In the remaining First Division fixture, South China "B" will be opposed to St. Joseph's, and this should provide soccer of an excellent standard. The Saints can always be relied upon to give a good account of themselves and, following last Saturday's sensational effort against the Rifles, should give the Chinese team a good run for their money.

The following is to-day's programme:

First Division
K. Chinese	v S. China "A"
	(Club, 4.15 p.m.)
S. China "B"	v St. Joseph's
	(Caroline Hill, 4.15 p.m.)
Second Division

INTER-SECTION HOCKEY

Club Meet Argonauta
This Morning

An excellent hockey game should be witnessed this morning on the Club ground at 10.30 a.m.
when the H. K. H. Club, who secured a bye into the final, meet the Grupo Desportivo Argonauta in the Final of the Civilian Section, of the Inter-Section Hockey Tournament.

The winner of this morning's match will meet the winner of the Navy Section, and the winners of this latter encounter will clash with the H.K.S.R.A., representing the Army champions, in the grand "finale."

H.K.H. Club:—H. F. Shields; G.
Sommer and E. V. Reed; R. A. Bates,
W. A. Reed and N. Whitley; N. A. E.
Mackay, S. A. Fowler, G. E. R.
Divett, B. I. Bickford and V. Bond.
G. D. Argonauta:—U. B. Souza; E.
L. Gosano and R. Xavier; R. Marques,
L. Oliveira and T. Alves; F. Nolasco,
A. S. Xavier, B. Gosano, A. Angelo
and L. Gosano.

"Y" Win, But Unimpressive

The Y.M.C.A. beat a Royal Navy
"A" team by 3 goals to 2 in a friendly hockey match at King's Park yesterday afternoon.

Although they were beaten, the Navy gave a better display than the "Y", who were seen at their worst.
Lt. Bickford, who led the Navy, netted the first goal of the match,
but A. Minihane, at inside-left, equalised for the "Y" soon afterwards. After the interval, Minihane, added two more goals to complete his "hat-trick". Just before the finish, Lt. Cruso at the outside-right, scored the losers' second goal.

Cumberland Win

In a friendly hockey match played at Happy Valley yesterday, H.M.S. Cumberland beat the Nomads' Hockey Club by 3 goals to 2 after leading at the interval
by the odd goal in three. R. J.
Reed and S. Reed scored for the losers.

Game Cancelled

The friendly hockey arranged for yesterday between the East Lancs. and the Royal Engineers was cancelled early in the afternoon.

Craigengower Win

Playing at the Valley, Craigengower's second eleven beat the Hong Kong University juniors by 20 runs.

HELPING STREET SLEEPERS

Good Work Done By Society

REPORT ISSUED

The third annual general meeting of the Street Sleepers' Shelter Society will be held at St. John's Cathedral Hall on Thursday, November 12, at 5.30 p.m., when the report and accounts for the year ended June 30, 1936, will be presented for adoption. All interested in the work of the Society are cordially invited to be present.

The report of the committee states: "In reviewing our third year's work we feel that we have every reason to be thankful for the way in which our work has grown, and we believe that our shelters are providing a definite need in the life of the poorer class of people in Hong Kong."

Three shelters, two in Hong Kong and one in Kowloon, were conducted by the Society during the winter season. Hot meals were provided on Christmas night, Chinese New Year and the night before closing and were very much appreciated. The total number of registrations for the three shelters was 51,687, and the total number of men who used the shelters was 671 men. In addition 252 cases were sent to hospital and 6,226 cases were treated at the shelters with dressings and medicine supplies.

The work of duty at the shelters was carried on by 20 organizations and 30 private persons.
Subscriptions to the work of the Society amounted to $3,475.72,
and there was a balance in hand,
as at June 30, 1936, of $1,240.59.

Irritable Nerves.

Any lack of minerals causes irritability and irregular functioning of the nerves.
Kalzana will conquer this condition surely and easily.

High Blood Pressure

Easily induced fatigue, dizziness, low resistance against colds and infections are very likely the first signs of high blood pressure. Kalzana brings down the pressure to normal and banishes the unpleasant fore-runners of advancing age.

Anaemia in Women

By regulating the functions Kalzana will prevent pain and discomfort and conquer anaemia in women easily, and in a natural way.

... the hidden cause of POOR HEALTH

Don't blame your work or modern conditions of living for your poor health. Look for the hidden cause—a lack of vital minerals in your body. Kalzana gets right to the root of ill-health, it improves the condition of the blood, overcomes irritability and increases the resistive power of your body.

"Formerly I was frequently suffering from headaches, anaemia and fatigue, but after trying Kalzana, my troubles disappeared like magic. I am entirely a new man now, thanks to Kalzana, which gave me radiant health and vitality."—writes Mr. C.K. S.

Bazaar In Kowloon To-Day

The Al Fresco Fete to be held in Kowloon to-day is the 53rd annual event of its kind that has been organised by the local Society of St. Vincent de Paul. The purpose is to raise funds for the poor, who are helped, without distinction of race or creed, by the Society, but it is the aim of the promoters to provide interesting entertainment as well as a worthy object to support.

The Fete, to be held at Chatham Road, Kowloon, near the Rosary Church, will be opened by Bishop Valtorta at 3.30 p.m. and will remain open until 11 p.m. The stalls and grounds will be gaily illuminated at night, and there will be a continuous musical programme throughout the afternoon and evening.

There are 14 stalls, with numerous games, for which attractive prizes will be awarded, and there will be on sale a great variety of articles at bargain prices. Many of the articles on sale are particularly suitable for sending abroad as Christmas presents, and among these are calendars and Christmas cards of exclusive design. There will also be a shooting gallery and an archery ground. At the latter there are special bows for young people, who will have an opportunity of directing their arrows at objects of different sizes, from a model of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank to one of the Clipper.

Every taste is catered for at the Fete, and it is guaranteed to be well worth a visit. No. 3 bus passes the gate.—Contributed.

FOOD "WASHED" WITH PURE AIR Constantly Circulating

in the Modern Air Conditioned
Refrigerator

Certain stored foods pass off impurities, unpleasant in odor, which are quickly absorbed by other foods. Thus food, to remain impurity-free and to prevent decay, must be kept in air that is constantly purified as well as chilled. Cold alone is not enough!

The new OLYMPIC ICE Refrigerator, utilizing SIX-SIDED REFRIGERATION, keeps vitalized fresh air constantly circulating around your food. It "picks up" odors and impurities, carries them to the melting ice film, where they are absorbed and eliminated through the drain pipe. Food odors cannot interchange!

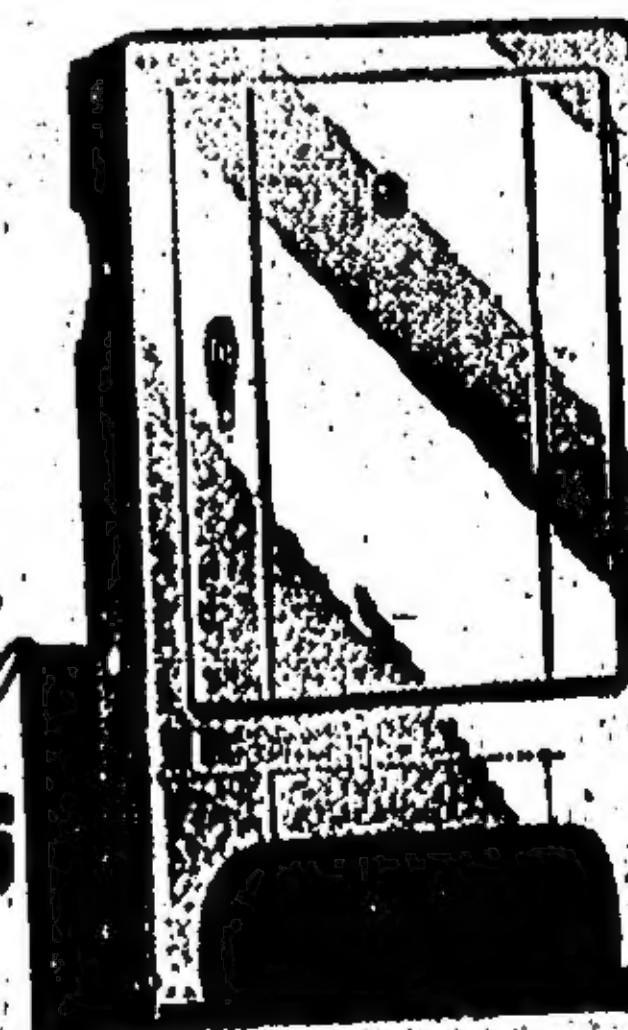

Too, the new OLYMPIC Air Conditioned Refrigerator maintains the correct balance of moisture in the air, preventing foods from drying out. Foods retain their natural flavors, juices and vitamins.

Our Ice Service Man will gladly demonstrate the new OLYMPIC Refrigerator.

The Presidential Election

THE election of a new President of the United States is too big an event to be ignored by anyone who makes any attempt to follow the course of politics in the outside world. The powers allotted to the President are so immense, the industrial development of the States has been so rapid, that it would be difficult to put bounds to the influence that a President might have upon the fortunes of all of us if a man of original force received adequate backing from a strong party. Every American is convinced that "God's own country"—which is, of course, his own—is the only country in the world that has a logical system of government and a genuine freedom. A good many new constitutions have been devised in the last 50 years, and it is quite safe to say that the legislators have first studied the American constitution with a view to adopting as much of it as possible. They have become familiar with the "Federalist" and the career of Alexander Hamilton, and the advantages of a "unitary" system over the federal system of Jefferson, and have noted how the Civil War and all other failures of the famous Constitution have arisen from the doctrine of States' Rights. The South African Convention was profoundly influenced by Brand's "Life of Alexander Hamilton," and it is certain that only the unitary control of Parliament could have solved all the Provincial rivalries. In Australia the same contest between central and provincial control is leading to a plebiscite for the amendment of the constitution in respect of the control of trade and industry, and the lack of central control has led to a breakdown of State credit, and the Parliament at Canberra has had to make itself responsible for State debts. A similar breakdown has occurred in Canada, and it will be very difficult to change the respective powers in face of the strong State feeling of Quebec. The last thing that politicians are willing to admit is that man is not a logical creature, and that there is not a reservoir of wisdom on tap from which all men will gladly draw. The main requisite in government is to have some organ of the administration whose decision will be final, right or wrong. The worst omen of the Spanish confusion is that there are now six governments, and that whatever party may win Madrid will have still another four to deal with.

The reason why the need for central control is the question of the day is that the development of mass production and efficient transport together have made artificial boundaries futile. A big steel plant, or any other industry, is a costly thing to start, and when started must have a wide area to supply. So far as the wellbeing of the ordinary citizen is concerned, a national boundary is just as meaningless industrially as a State boundary within a federal system. This was recognised two weeks ago when the Governments of the U.S.A., Great Britain, and France undertook to reduce quotas and other restrictions as far as possible, and to use their influence to the same end with other countries, concurrently with an effort to keep a reasonably steady money system. And long ago the Labour Party came up against the same hidden snag—that very little could be done to improve conditions except on an international scale.

Governor Landon accused President Roosevelt of aiming at a dictatorship. The U.S.A. has during the last four years been governed by the Supreme Court in all the most important domestic affairs. Nine elderly gentlemen, not subject to election at all, and voting by a majority—frequently five to four—have decided that after the President and Congress had passed laws which they considered to be essential for the regulation of industry, those laws, duly promulgated and largely acted upon, should be cancelled. To the outsider it would appear that the natural retort would be a demand for the amendment of the Constitution that would leave those decisions to Congress and the President. Certainly it would have been awkward for the Democratic Party, historically the champion of State Rights, to adopt that programme, but with its abandonment the struggle lost a clear dividing line and with that most of its interest to the foreigner.

Hong Kong Personalities

Continuing the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Kony, the talented Hungarian artist.

OUR personality this week is Mr. Kieran Begdon, Secretary to The Hong Kong Travel Association.

Mr. Begdon was born in the Queen's County, and educated at St. Mary's College, Westmeath, Ireland. Coming of an old newspaper family, it seemed natural that Mr. Begdon should have chosen the field of printing and publicity for a career. Hence, he served a full indentureship at The Athlone Printing Works Co., Ltd., general printers, and proprietors of the well-known midland Irish newspapers—"The Westmeath Independent" and "The King's County Independent."

In 1916 Mr. Begdon sat in London in open competition for the important post of Instructor in English Colour Printing to the Chinese. At this examination the competitors were called upon to sign a provisional agreement to sail, if successful, for China. Three weeks later, little dreaming of success in this competition, Mr. Begdon joined the Army for service in France, but, prior to his going into training, he received word that he had been selected for the post in China. The Army Authorities, after reprimanding him for having joined up after having signed an agreement to leave the country, granted him a provisional release from service, when he sailed for China.

As a tribute to Mr. Begdon's success under this appointment, it may be mentioned that examples of the work executed by his students in Shanghai were awarded a special diploma of merit at the International Printing Trades Exhibition held in London in 1926. On completion of his agreement with the Chinese, Mr. Begdon was invited by the management of a world-wide organisation in Shanghai to organise and manage for it an advertising department, which position he filled successfully for a period of over four years, or until the occasion of his marriage, when he relinquished this office.

With a view to studying the latest methods and practice in printing and publicity, Mr. Begdon visited England, America and Europe in 1923 and again in 1930. In the course of these studies he was associated with such widely known printing interests as the American Lithographic Co., of New York, the Goss Printing Press Co., of Chicago, the Multicolour Printing Press Co., Chicago, the American Rotogravure Co., etc., and finally qualified at the Kelly Press Co., New Jersey, for a certificate in American Printing Press Assembly and Operation.

THE PASSING HOUR

BY A.N.M.

LORD Rothermere's short visit to us suggests some ponderation of the journalistic problem: What is that makes "front page news?" We all know the reply made by his brother, the late Lord Northcliffe: "If a dog bites a man that is not news: if a man bites a dog that is news." And yet the social effect of a man biting a dog would be absolutely nil. On the same day it might have happened that some unobtrusive chemist had made in his laboratory a new combination of the utmost importance. Nothing would be said about that until somebody began to float a company to exploit the patent—

If any. There was plenty of publicity about Marconi and his new system of telegraphy, but nothing had been said at the time when Clerk Maxwell investigated the wave-lengths of sound and laid the foundation for a dozen men's reputations that are more familiar names even to-day. Front page publicity has nothing to do with genuine importance, for only a small proportion of readers would be capable of assessing the real importance of anything at all abstruse or recondite. There is always something arbitrary about the removal of news from the front page, for all journalism is done in a hurry.

ABYSSINIA

TAKE for instance the Abyssinian, or Ethiopian, campaign. All those who knew anything of the country calculated that it would take at least two years. Not only should it have taken at least that time, but actually it is doing so. The flight of the Emperor Haile Selassie removed Abyssinia to small type on an inside page, for the figure of the "Roi en exil" is so common nowadays that it is no longer even romantic. Meantime the campaign is still going on. The Italians were shut up in Addis Ababa during all the "long rains," and have only now made a move to get on with the conquest of the country by the occupation of the chief town of the western section, a place called Gore. What happened at Gore is quite characteristic of Africa. The rains having stopped campaigning the British Consul "carried on." He had long been resident there, and won the confidence of everybody. He was therefore quite unofficially consulted on all manner of difficulties. When the rains stopped, as his presence might cause trouble with Italy, he quietly packed up and set off for the coast. A few days later Gore was "captured" by the Italians.

SOME HONEST "SPECIALS"

AN amusing book has just been published, the joint work of half a dozen Special War Correspondents. We remember how utterly unsatisfactory the "war news" was last year, vague and contradictory. The condition of contributing to this book was that each of the half dozen should confine themselves to a narrative of what they actually saw. The upshot is that they saw nothing, and as they were costing a lot of money they were gradually recalled. One of them is quite proud of having at any rate seen some fighting men, but it appears that the men he saw were a few natives on their way to join up and still 100 miles from the troops. Otherwise their stories are quite interesting. But they would all have played the better part if they had been candid about it at the time, and finally qualified at the Kelly Press Co., New Jersey, for a certificate in American Printing Press Assembly and Operation.

he has undertaken there, is that it simply cannot be done in a hurry. We ourselves, when "wrought up," are not so civilised as we think we are when sitting under our vine and figtree.

SLOW WORK
THE fact is that this line of thought is profoundly discouraging. Our own English civilisation in any recognisable form cannot be said to be more than 1,000 years old, but Spain started on its civilised career 1,000 years before the Christian era. The Rio Tinto Copper Mine is known to have been worked long before the Carthaginians and the Roman conquests, and the Spanish "seccionallism" takes its character and its vigour from those distant days when the districts were colonised by men of different races. There is nothing like war to teach geography and history. Ancient history apart, some slight researches into the last century have amazed me with the discovery of the amount of fighting in Spain that has never become "front page news." Novelists in search of "battle, murder, and sudden death" need never run short of plots. Ever since the Napoleonic invasion of 1808 there has never been lacking some province either in a state of rebellion or preparing for a rebellion, or plotting a rebellion of some sort. And there is nothing new about the massacres that shock us so violently because we have none of all that history in our minds.

CASUALTIES IN SPAIN

LEAVING on one side all the casualties in actual battle, of which it is impossible to give a close estimate because war correspondents are no more allowed near the front than they were in Abyssinia, it appears from the most trustworthy records that at least 150,000 people have been killed in the last four months "irregularly"—that is, leaving out of account also all those condemned by the "revolutionary tribunals." The other day we saw the harmless sentence in a cable that in Madrid the (Socialist) Government had been unable to control the Anarchists (followers of Bakunin), who "had got out of hand." It has been discovered that they made a tribunal of their own, and carried out executions at the rate of 60 per day during the first three weeks. Poor Spain! One recalls the well attested story of General Narvaez, one of the Dictators of the nineteenth century. When he was on his death bed, his Confessor asked him: "Does Your Excellency forgive your enemies?" The answer came in a confident voice: "I have no enemies. I have shot them all." But what about the general disarmament and the reign of peace?

FASHION'S FOIBLES

The laws of Solon (638-558 B.C.) aimed to curb extravagance in dress. No Greek woman was allowed to wear more than three garments at the same time.

Mannerisms Make The Male

IF "manners makyth man," mannerisms, undoubtedly, proclaim him. And, in this uncouth age, it is no less certainly true that manners are at a discount and mannerisms are at a premium.

I blame modern woman for much of the decline that has stricken and stultified the manners of modern man. I praise the exacting standards of all forms of money-making for the rapid development of mannerisms among men. For in this modern world of fierce but mentally stimulating competition, the men who look alike, think alike, and act alike are hopelessly outclassed and outpaced by the men who, consciously or subconsciously, have acquired mannerisms which display their personalities with the conspicuous brilliance of blood-red and sea-green signal lights at night.

I am not suggesting for one moment that all mannerisms are either good or desirable. But I do suggest vigorously that mannerisms in one form or another stamp all men of mark.

"Peculiarities"
ALL great men have their little "peculiarities." Even if the peculiarities are consciously acquired and self-consciously exploited (as usually they are, for example, among distinguished actors), the world is none the less willing to recognise them. But the world adores most the man whose mannerisms are so much a part of him that the man himself is blissfully unaware of their very existence. It is a curious but easily ascertainable fact that women very rarely exhibit any observable forms of mannerisms. Even when they are "freakish" their freakishness does not serve to individualise them. On the contrary, it merely succeeds in emphasising their insistence on the danger of departing from the best standards of the worst tribal habits.

In other words, their hats and eyebrows, for instance, while being freakish in themselves, are powerless to call forth such an exclamation as "Look at that extraordinary interesting woman" for the obvious reason that one woman's taste in freakish hats is simultaneously all women's freakish taste in hats.

Like Roses

AND so the regimentation of women goes on while men, their natural superiors, continue the bitter struggle for self-expression by the gentle art of being a trifle different from the fellow next door.

Mannerisms are like roses. The moment you attempt to dissect or analyse them their beauty vanishes. All that it is safe to say about them is that they enhance the personalities of those fortunate enough to possess them.

If lesser fry attempt them they merely succeed in making themselves conspicuously ridiculous.—CECIL PALMER.

Miss McLean On Chinese Girls

MISS Cecil McLean, a society make up artist and Max Factor's special representative, has just spent almost two weeks in the Colony. And to have someone right here to bring us make-up secrets from Hollywood has been no small treat! This is not the first time Miss McLean, who, incidentally, is as charming as can be, has been to the East, but she declares she is struck afresh by the loveliness of the Chinese girls.

"I have never seen such perfect skins!" she exclaims. "And they take make-up so wonderfully..." "But isn't it a pity," she went on, "they all have an absolute complex about looking exactly like each other. They all take their hair back behind their ears, and all with the self-same permanent wave. I would like to take each one separately and not only teach them how to apply their make-up to suit their own face, but arrange their hair in an individual manner—but of course I can't do that." That inevitable bunch of curls in the neck is tiresome... and so many other styles to choose from. There's a tip to be taken from Anna May Wong, whose hairdress always suits her special type.

Miss Wong Lal-wei, the well-known singer of the Wing Nam Music Association, is a great favourite with Chinese radio enthusiasts.

few months, but perhaps she will visit Hong Kong again on her return.

Most Famous Sportswoman

WE'LL be seeing Sonja Henie, the world's most sensational ice-skating champion, (she's beautiful, too!) in the films one of these days. Miss Henie signed for Twentieth Century Fox a while ago, and the studio considered the pact of sufficient importance to include it in a newsreel—that's rare, even in Hollywood. And Mr.

Zanuck beamed and said, "I've signed Miss Henie and her skates. Even if she couldn't skate I'd have signed her anyway—but not for so much money."

Miss Henie's record is wonderful. Still in her early twenties she's the most celebrated figure on ice—and there's more to be said about it. She worked hard, took her skates with a will, and at the age of fourteen, in 1926, she competed in the world championships and finished second only to Helina Jalosa of Hungary. She has never been defeated since. Her record is by far and away above that of any other athlete, male or female, in the history of any sport. In the world of entertainment she is considered the greatest, the biggest international sensation since Anna Pavlova. Last February she turned professional, and since that time has become the highest paid athlete in the world. Her very appearance is a sell-out. She has skated in practically every capital of two continents.

Miss Henie doesn't drink. She doesn't smoke. She doesn't diet either. But she exercises rigorously, being an expert horse-woman, swimmer and tennis player.

Character Revealed In Smoke

ALTHOUGH Queen Elizabeth is said to have been one of the first women to be tempted by the tobacco leaf, it was not until hundreds of years later that women who smoked ceased to be branded as "unmannerly" or "fast." To-day, the average young woman strolls leisurely into a tobacconist's shop, purchases her favourite brand of cigarette and, keeping a ten appointment, discusses the affairs of the moment through a haze of blue grey smoke.

It is by our everyday actions that we betray ourselves, and many a woman's character is indicated by the manner in which she handles her cigarette.

We have all met the person who holds her cigarette firmly, yet smokes with jerky movements indicated by the action of her hand or the ejection of the smoke from her mouth. On the other hand we have noticed the young woman lazing on the beach with a box of cigarettes beside her. Her thoughts are far away, for the cigarette is lifted slowly to her lips and a thin spiral of smoke curls upwards—intermittently and gracefully. She is enjoying her cigarette, but she is not aware of it, as the ash accumulates at the tip and she does not flick it away.

The opposite type are the women who chew the ends of their cigarettes. So energetic and determined are these women that they would prefer to use a holder or smoke a pipe as their male counterparts usually do. Last but not least, according to the tidy housewife, is the smoker who flicks her ash on the carpet. Butts of cigarettes are sure to be thrown into fireplaces, even if ash-trays are nearby. In this careless inattention, one recognises the somewhat self-centered type with little consideration for others. Women of the younger generation, says the tidy housewife.

FIVE FAMOUS CRIMES RECALLED BY FORMER SCOTLAND YARD CHIEF

These five stories are told by Sir Basil Thomson celebrated war time head of Scotland Yard. Each of the five crimes described in this series stood out prominently in its day. Indeed, each remains alive in England's crime annals even now because of certain legal or factual precedents or unusually intriguing circumstances.

I THE RUGELEY POISONING

By SIR BASIL THOMSON

A case that created enormous public interest in December, 1855, was the poisoning of a young racing man, John Cook, who was taken ill at the Raven hotel, Shrewsbury, on the day after the Shrewsbury races. He had won money on Pole Star. His companion at the races, William Palmer, a Rugeley surgeon, had given him a drink on their return to the hotel, but had declined to have one himself.

Cook complained to a man named Fisher that the grog "burned his throat awfully," and he was sure that Palmer had "dosed" him. A few minutes later he was violently sick; he repeated to another acquaintance, a man named Herring, that he had been "dosed." Herring expressed his surprise that Cook should have subsequently arranged to breakfast with Palmer, and Cook replied, "Ah, you don't know 'gik'." In some way he seemed to be in Palmer's power.

As he seemed to be feeling no better, Palmer carried him off to Rugeley and settled him in a hotel there, and other doctors being in attendance. Cook complained of some pills which Palmer described as "morphine," and the other doctors advised him to change them, as they seemed to be causing the patient severe pains and attacks of rigidity. Palmer then administered two pills which he said contained ammonia. Soon after taking them Cook was seized with violent pain and convulsions and died on December 20.

On hearing of his death, Cook's stepfather, a Mr. Stephens, who was much attached to him and was suspicious of Palmer, came to Rugeley and announced his intention of having a post-mortem examination. This was done by physicians from Guy's Hospital in London, who found in the body large quantities of antimony; they failed to find any strychnine, though they felt sure it had been administered.

Immediately after Cook's death the chambermaid, unknown to Palmer, who thought that he was alone in the room, saw him thrust his hand under the dead man's pillows and feel in all his pockets. No trace could be found of Cook's betting book. The police enquiries, very ably conducted by Detective Sergeant Field, revealed some startling evidence of former crimes.

Palmer had for years been receiving large sums from life insurance offices for insuring persons who died soon after the policies were taken out. His own wife was one of these, and so was his brother; indeed, a total judges, even, were among the audience. As strychnine had not been found in the organs of the dead man, the prosecution had to depend upon circumstantial evidence, but the conduct of the crown counsel was marked by the utmost fairness. All the evidence for the prosecution had been made known to the defending counsel before the trial.

Palmer was thirty-one. He was described in the calendar as of superior education. He was a short, rather stout person with a round head and face, scanty hair of a sandy colour, and a ruddy complexion. There was nothing in his expression or carriage which indicated cunning or cruelty. Throughout the long trial he was composed and interested. He paid close attention to the evidence and passed notes to his counsel at frequent intervals.

The attorney general's speech occupies thirty-three pages of the law cases section of the Annual Register. He said that the accused had been trying to raise money on bills ever since 1853, and traced his gradual drift into racing and betting. He had been present at the post-mortem, and when it was announced that no trace of strychnine had been found he turned to one of the examiners and said, "Doctor, they won't hang us yet." One of the most important witnesses for the prosecution was the chambermaid. She had attended Cook during his attacks, and he had asked her whether she had ever seen anyone in such agony as he had been through during the night, and said that it had been due to Palmer's pills. She tasted the broth that she had brought up for Cook's last meal, and it had made her ill.

After more than an hour's retirement the jury found Palmer guilty and he was sentenced to be executed at Stafford. After his conviction he played the part of an innocent man admirably. On the morning of his execution the high sheriff asked him if he acknowledged the justice of his sentence. He replied with energy: "No, sir, I do not. I go to the scaffold a murdered man."

of sixteen murders were attributed to him. That was not all. Just before the Rugeley case he had been arrested for forging a cheque in favour of a Mr. Padwick; it had been dishonoured. Palmer said that the signature was that of his late wife. He was transferred from the custody of the sheriff and detained at the suit of the crown.

The local feeling against Palmer was so strong that the case was removed from Stafford to the Central Criminal Court in London. His trial, which lasted fourteen days, began on May 4, 1856, and was a cause celebre.

A vast crowd came to the Old Bailey to hear it, but no one was admitted without a ticket. The seats surrounding the bench were crowded with members of both houses. Charles Dickens was present. Some of the

Sorry They Were Troubled

Telephone operators at Benoni (Transvaal) have been well and truly troubled—but it only lasted 15 minutes.

Suddenly every subscriber in the town lifted his or her receiver at the same moment and tried to speak to the exchange. The operators spent a hectic quarter of an hour explaining to them why their 'phones had rung.

An electrical fault had thrown the exchange out of commission for a few minutes. When the service was restored, the return of the electric current caused all the telephones in the town to ring together, and subscribers responded in a body.

Disillusionment

"He even asked me to make a wedding dress for his girl friend when she becomes his wife,"

Mrs. John F. Neill, told Judge Thomas Bluet in a suit against her husband at Philadelphia.

Counsel for the husband said he had become disillusioned when he learned recently that his wife was ten years older than he.

The wife was granted a 28s. weekly maintenance.

Joyride in Steamroller

Not speed but the thrill of driving something very big was the aim of Ellsworth Brown, a Negro employed as a night watchman, when he stole a joyride at Union, New Jersey, in a steamroller.

Leaving the main highway, he drove it through fields and pastures, coming back only to make a call at a tavern. Then he was off again and the steamroller was found later in a ditch.

Brown, who was a Government relief worker, lost his job.

NEWSPAPERS exist for comment, and it is therefore somewhat paradoxical to express the view that there is often too much comment on things that are better left to the reconciling effect of private and unofficial conference. Particularly is this true when the subject of discussion is a decision of a referee, who is one of a class of men that more than all others require moral support at all times. But the decision to play extra time in the Lai Wah match was a matter of discretion and not of the application of rules. The fact that the game had to be suspended before the extra time had expired—"because of the failure of light"—indicates that the light cannot have been too good at the beginning, but that point is really incidental. The "extra time" discretion is surely left to the referee for the purpose of getting a decision on a level game. The contest consists in securing the better score within the normal time, and a well-trained team faced with only ten minutes to go, naturally goes all out in a way that would be unwise if they knew they had another twenty minutes to play.

Punctuality in the kick off, and punctuality in the final whistle seems to be the only principle to avoid discussion. And the less discussion the better.

Referees And Rules

THERE is no dispute about the principle that the referee in any game has autocratic control, and no other system would be workable at all. But his duties are primarily to see that the rules are observed, and only secondarily to take action of a special character in order to secure a decision. I remember a final round of the North of England Tennis Championship which seemed to be interminable. Each of the four players won his own service, after long and exhausting rallies. At 18 games all in a bad light the referee decided that the players were too weary to get a decision, and although it was Saturday night and everyone had come to see a decision, he ruled in favour of a finish on the Monday morning. The result was an anticlimax. Instead of an excited crowd there were only a few officials and reporters, and the match was decided in ten minutes by a couple of love games.

The rules themselves sometimes work hardship, but the referee has no discretion if either player or either side appeals to them. In a singles match, hotly contested, one of the players at length sent a lob that would have landed ten yards behind the back line. The striker, in an excess of joy, dropped his racket and ran to catch the ball. The server claimed the point and the match on the ground that the ball had not been allowed to drop. The referee had no option but to allow the point. Every player is supposed to know the rules. So strong is the feeling that decisions should neither be made nor questioned by the players that the courtesy of giving a point to an opponent as compensation for a mistake by a linesman is frequently objected to. It is certainly apt to make the linesman less confident.

The Clippers

THE passengers on the first Clipper to make the big flight seem to have been very favourably impressed, not only with the harbour and their hospitable reception, but with the facilities of the Kai Tak aerodrome. And no sooner are they gone than another is due. In another year these big visitors will probably arouse no curiosity at all. It was a happy thought, by the way, for His Excellency the Governor to entertain the passengers, for the loyal turn-out of our American friends might have given the impression that we were an entirely American Colony—a development which has been prophesied by some anticipators of "a hundred years hence" for all the British territories round the Pacific, including Australia and New Zealand. It is extraordinary what an impression the American mobilisation of twenty years ago made on the imagination of the world. As none of us will be interested in politics a hundred years hence and the contemporary world gives us plenty to worry about such speculations do not look very urgent.

New Badminton Player?

C. AUSTIN, who is better known as a Rugby player, is also a very good performer at badminton and there is a possibility that we may see him in play during the forthcoming season. He is at present Hon. Secretary of the Rugby Section of the H.K.F.C.

Sportsmen Returning

GEORGE FOWLER, swimmer, tennis player and footballer, W. F. Kerr, Interport swimmer and Rugby player, and Jimmy Smith, of the C. B. A., are expected back in the Colony on November 24 by the s.s. Comorin.

Table Tennis At "Y"

THE Y.M.C.A. Table Tennis or Ping Pong Section is again in full swing, and a ladder competition with 10 names is up on the Sports Notice Board. Among those who have signed up are W. L. Ashton, S. A. Sweetman, J. L. Anderson, S. A. Gray, G. W. Giffen, H. B. Neve, R. Goldman, R. Perry and R. A. Bates.

"Y" Billiards Entries

AMONG the names entered for the Y.M.C.A. Billiards championship are those of J. Ponsford, a former champion, who has just returned from leave, and J. Young, a former runner-up, who has also recently returned to the Colony.

New Badminton Club?

There is a possibility that a new badminton Club will be formed in the very near future with headquarters at Tai-koo. At present everything is very much in the dark, but I understand that Tai-koo and Fire Brigade members, may amalgamate under a new name.

"Y" To Send Team To Macau?

WITH R. A. Bates at the helm and W. J. Brown managing the secretarial work, the possibilities of a visit to Macau by the Y.M.C.A. hockey team this season is most hopeful.

Inter-Section Hockey Final

THE final of the Civilian Section of the Inter-Section Hockey Tournament, between the Hong Kong Hockey Club, who received a bye into the Final, and the Grupo Desportivo Argonauta, will take place this morning on the Club ground commencing at 10.30 a.m.

Wolverson Going Home

THE Navy will soon be losing the services of Wolverson, their full-back, as he is due for Home soon. He has been one of their outstanding players for the past two seasons, and his place will be hard to fill.

Annual Soccer Match

THE annual football match between the Hong Kong Sharebrokers' Association and the Hong Kong Stock Exchange is going to be played much earlier this year than in previous seasons. The winning team keeps the Harriman Trophy for a year and if the Association wins this time it will not be out of turn.

Badminton For Chinese Dinner!

CLUB de Recreio have organised an intra-Club badminton match to be played on Wednesday next. The winners are to be treated to a Chinese Dinner!

Held Up By Examinations.

OWING to the lateness of their examinations, the "Varsity Ladies' Doubles" badminton team will not be able to take part in any games until the early part of next January.

Jessop Taking Rest

G. JESSOP, the Police hockey goalkeeper, who has not been able to take part in the game for the past few weeks owing to an injury to his hand, has now fully recovered from the injury, but will probably rest for another few days before returning to his place in the team.

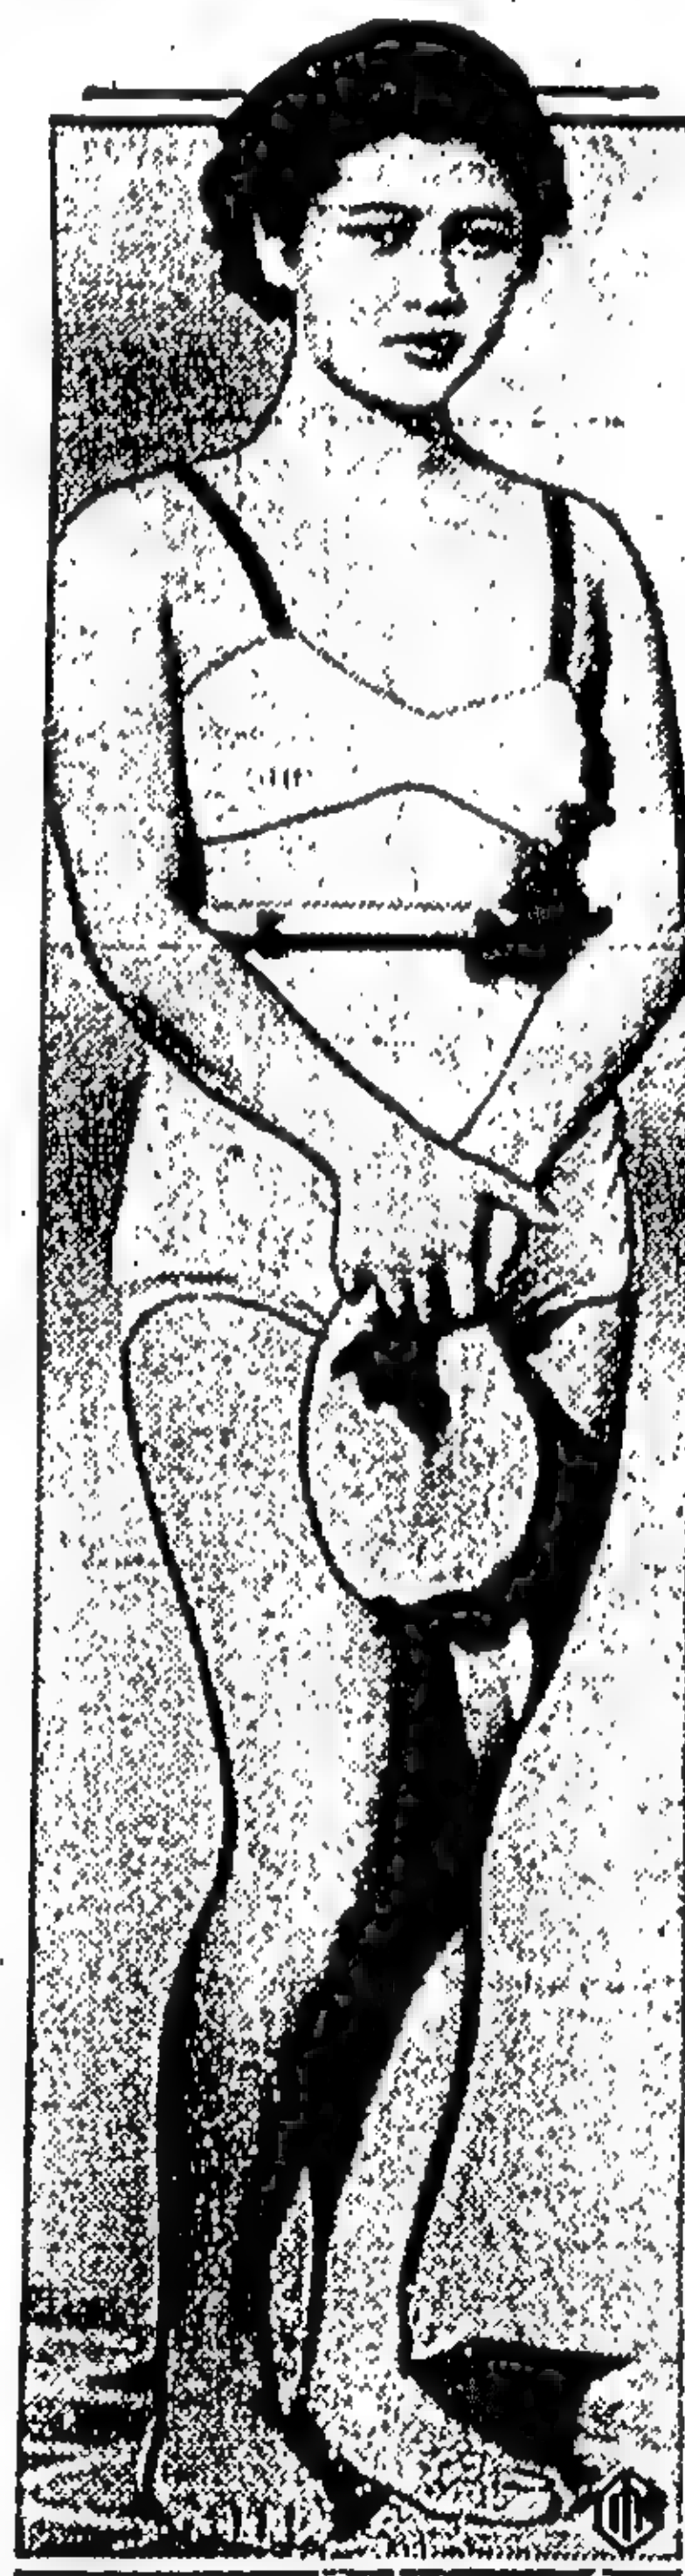

Mak Wai-ming, the new Colony harbour-swim champion.

Bad Luck On A. T. Lee

IT is reliably learned that "Tinker" Lee, the Craigengower cricketer who was recently operated on for an enlarged gland in his thigh, will definitely not take part in any kind of sport for at least a year.

Retiring?

It is reported that Miss Yeung Sau-king, "China's Mermaid," above, will be leaving for Shanghai at the end of the year. She may continue her studies in the Northern port.

Talk of Retirement!

MANY rumours are going about town that Miss Yeung Sau-king has decided not to enter swimming competitions any more. Unconfirmed reports state that she has made up her mind to retire!

By the Judge

Power, Promising Wicket-Keeper

A. Power, the University slow bowler, has taken up wicket-keeping and is making a good job of it too. He used to play in that position when he was in the Thomas Hanbury School, Shanghai.

Craigengower Setback

OWING to the inability of Dr. Lam Chi-wel, who was recently operated upon, to play cricket this season, Craigengower will lose one of their most useful men. Last year he headed the batting and bowling averages of the Club in the Second Division.

Oliver Takes Up Hockey

OLIVER, of the Royal Artillery, who was some seasons ago one of the best Army full-backs in the Colony, has returned and is now stationed at Stonecutters. He has not been playing much soccer since his arrival here, but has turned out for the Battery at hockey and plays a good game at centre-forward.

Clarke To Be Hunt's Successor?

WHEN Sub-Inspector R. J. Hunt goes on leave next year his place as examiner and representative of the Royal Life Saving Society will probably be taken by W. Cla. of the Police.

Step To Be Commended

THE action of the committee of the Argonauta Hockey Club in suspending one of their players who was ordered off the field of play during a match recently, even before his case was heard by the executive Committee of the Mamak Hockey Tournament is a step in the right direction.

Most Improved Player

ONE of the most improved players in local hockey is R. Marques, a schoolboy, who plays at left-half for the Argonauta team. He gives every promise of developing into a first class player.

Eastern Honoured

THE selection of Sung Ling-sing of Eastern to represent the Chinese in the Lai Wah Cup competition must have been a source of great gratification to the members of that Club as few players in junior teams ever receive recognition in representative games.

Sharebrokers' Cricket XI

C. A. L. Rickett, secretary of the Hong Kong Sharebrokers' Association, is a very keen cricketer and is making an effort to get up some mid-week matches for the Brokers against some of the Schools or Army teams. Their difficulty, however, is that they do not have a ground, and for that reason fixtures are difficult to arrange.

New Job For Jones

CHIEF Yeoman Jones, who is in charge of the Navy Football teams, has a new job. He is now the official recorder and timekeeper at the Royal Hong Kong Yacht Club. This means that he will not be able to attend any football games when yachting is on.

Tribute To Col. Harrison

I UNDERSTAND that Colonel H. C. Harrison has relinquished the office of Chairman of the Hong Kong Football Association in favour of Major C. M. Manners, who has returned from leave. During his short tenure of office he has earned the admiration of all councillors who came in contact with him by his tact and outspokenness in dealing with all matters in the best interests of the Association.

Keen Horsewoman

MISS Jean Dalziel, one of the most active members of the Hong Kong Ladies' Hockey Club, is also a very keen horsewoman and goes for a ride whenever she can find the time. She is, incidentally, a member of the Hong Kong Riding School.

PERUTZ · PERPANTIC · RECTEPAN · PEROMNIA · PERUTZ

These three emulsions faithfully reproduce the true colourvalues and differ essentially only in grain and speed. This difference must be made and different filmkinds are absolutely necessary considering the abundance of photographic problems which are tackled to-day, as a matter of course, by all amateurs, specialists and beginners, with the most varied systems and sizes of apparatus.

The desire of all serious amateurs for "recte-panchromatic" emulsions was first realised by the Perutz with the introduction of the filmkinds "Rectepan", "Peromnia" and "Perpantic".

BAND CONCERT AT PENINSULA NEXT SUNDAY

Very Fine Programme Arranged

EAST LANC. BAND SELECTED

By kind permission of Lieut. Colonel A. C. Marsh and Officers the Band of the 2nd Battalion, The East Lancashire Regiment will play the following programme of music at the Peninsula Hotel on Armistice Sunday, November 8, commencing at 9 p.m.:

PROGRAMME

1. March Pot-Pourri.

"Passing of the Regiment" arr. Winter.

Nothing stirs the imagination so much as a good rousing military march and here we have a selection of excerpts from such works by famous composers. Marches were originally written for marching purposes and in many cases were composed to commemorate some historical event in which the British army took part. Consider a few of the titles:—

"Gallant Serbia" .... those momentous days in 1914.

"Punjab" .... the Army's long service in India.

"The Last Stand" .... which might have been dedicated to many heroic deeds when British troops fought with their backs to the wall.

There are many others which will be instantly recognised and a word of praise is due to the arranger, who has very cleverly and patiently made this pot-pourri a worthy sequel to the already well-known "Martial Moments."

2. Overture.

"Light Cavalry" Suppe.

One of Franz Von Suppe's best known concert overtures and, although extensively played by Orchestras and military bands alike, it never becomes tiresome to the listener. The overture opens with a form of cavalry call given out on the cornets for three bars, and then it is answered by the full band. The call is then taken up successively by horns, clarinets and finally by the brass section, whilst the wood-wind play a rather florid semi-quaver figure which adds contrast. This leads us to an Allegro, when the clarinets break into a staccato melody followed by a brilliant 5/8 at the end of which is a short clarinet cadenza. Continuing, we find ourselves listening to a plaintive theme given out by the clarinets and saxophones which has a very light accompaniment until, suddenly, without warning we again meet the brilliant 5/8 which brings the work to a fitting close, the brass predominating with the original cavalry call.

3. Entr'acte.

"The Valley of Poppies" Ancliffe.

4. Selection from Sullivan's Opera "Iolanthe."

Introducing:—

"Chorus of Fairies"

"Duetto-None shall part us"

"The Sentry Song."

"The Lord Chancellor's Song."

"When Britain really ruled the waves."

"Oh Foolish Fay"

Chorus Finale.

5. "The Moonlight Sonata."

1st Movement:—Adagio Sostenuto.

2nd Movement:—Allegretto.

3rd Movement:—Presto Agitato.

Ludwig Van Beethoven was born at Bonn-on-Rhine in 1770 and died in Vienna in 1827. He became a great concert pianist and a most prolific composer and is to-day considered the greatest musical genius the world has ever produced.

"The Moonlight Sonata" was written for the pianoforte in the year 1820 and, although essentially a composition for this instrument, the arrangement to be played on November 8 loses hardly any of the beauty first conceived by the composer. The late Mr. Frank Winterbottom, Professor of Instrumentation at the Royal Military School of Music, Kneller Hall, had this arrangement published shortly before his death in 1929. It was the custom in Beethoven's day for publishers to write a synopsis or programme note around compositions; in this way they hoped to appeal to the listeners' imagination as well as his musical appreciation. The following, although grudgingly accepted by the composer, was created around the "Sonata Opus 27."

Whilst taking a stroll through the poorer quarter of Vienna, Beethoven and a friend were attracted by the strains of music coming from within an old cottag. Glancing through the broken shutters, they see the beautiful face and soft white hands of a young blind girl, lit up by the moonbeams as they streamed through. Moved beyond words, the great composer enters the cottage and in a few minutes is seated at the piano, inspiration intensified and here we have the "Moonlight Sonata."

INTERVAL

6. Selection from the Play "The Chocolate Soldier"

Oscar Strauss.

Introduction — "The Chocolate Soldier"

Come, Come, my Hero.

Sympathy—"The Bulgarians"

Thank the Lord the War is over.

Falling in Love—Forgive, forgive.

That would be lovely—The Letter Song — Finale.

7. (a) Serenade.

(b) Cornet Solo.

"Roses of Picardy" Wood.

Soloist:—Bandman W. Foster.

8. Excerpts from the Opera "Madame Butterfly"

Puccini.

This opera is perhaps the greatest of Puccini's operatic successes and his skill in maintaining his individuality, at the same time handling the Japanese idiom and in creating an appropriate atmosphere, is evident throughout his selection.

Listen for the following well known songs.—

"Is't love or fancy, I cannot tell you" (Pinkerton).

"Shake that tree till every flower" (Butterfly).

"Ev'ry flower: Butterfly, ev'ry flower" (Suzuki).

"O Kami, O Kami" (Chorus).

"Farewell O Happy home, Farewell home of love" (Pinkerton).

"One fine day, we'll notice a thread of smoke arising on the sea" (Butterfly).

"My son sent to me from Heaven, straight from the throne of glory" (Butterfly).

9. Medley of famous waltzes

"Dream of the Waltz" arr Wright.

Including:—

"The Quaker Girl"—"Bohemia"

"The Happy Day."

"The Balkan Princess"

"Marcheta"

"A Kiss in the dark"—"Dear Love my Love."

10. Selection from the Play "The Bing-Boys are here"

Ayer.

Containing some of the best war-time melodies ever written.

11. Fantasia.

"Cavalcade" Coward.

Selection of incidental music to Noel Coward's panorama, which requires no further comment on account of its popularity.

Regimental Marches:—

"The Attack"

"Lancashire Lad"

GOD SAVE THE KING

Conductor:—Mr. A. B. Yule.

There will be no charge for admission.

INDIGNATION IN LONDON

EMPHATIC DENIAL OF ALLEGATIONS

ADEQUATE REPARATION BY JAPAN HOPED FOR

London, Yesterday. "Extraordinarily brutal" is the description applied here to the treatment of three British sailors by the Japanese police at Keelung recently. The Japanese allegations that the men did not pay their bills is emphatically refuted. It is stated that an enquiry instituted by the Commander-in-Chief of the China Station, Admiral Sir Charles Little, proved undoubtedly, despite the Japanese allegations to the contrary, that the sailors paid their taxi-fare and were seen to do so by a Petty Officer who was not with their party.

The enquiry also established that the sailors were sober when taken to the police station, and when they emerged they were badly beaten and battered and one man had his jaw broken.

The British authorities do not object to the police's exercising their proper functions in a case of disorderliness or drunkenness on the part of sailors, although it is generally felt to be known that the Navy feel a great pride in the good behaviour of their ratings when they visit foreign ports. In this particular case complaint lies against the Japanese police for the extraordinarily brutal manner in which the men were treated.

It is recalled that similar earlier episodes have occurred where there has been very good reason to complain against the behaviour of the Japanese police in Manchukuo. Some time ago, it is recalled, a British Indian subject named Hussein was subjected to brutalities when he was detained by the Japanese police, and there have been several other cases where Chinese employees of British residents in Manchukuo have been similarly ill-treated.

Milan: A political pronouncement of the first importance is expected to be made by Signor Mussolini when he addresses a huge crowd in the Cathedral Square here at 3 p.m., G.M.T., to-morrow.

With regard to the postponement of Admiral Sir Charles Little's visit to Japan, it is pointed out that when a new Commander-in-Chief hoists his flag it is the invariable custom that he should pay a courtesy call in Japan, as Sir Charles was intending to do at the end of the month when going to Yokohama, where arrangements had been made for his reception and entertainment.

BRITISH REGIMENTS STAND BY

Jerusalem, Yesterday. Two British battalions in Palestine, and two in Cairo are understood to be standing by in view of the developments in Baghdad.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

But with this case pending it was obviously necessary to postpone the visit. The British Government hopes that adequate reparation will be made by Japan or an extremely unpleasant episode.—Reuter.

FRANCE'S AIR FORCE

50 Per Cent. Increase in Machines

Paris, Yesterday. The number of French fighting planes will be increased by 50 per cent., the Air Force effective increased by 10,000 and there will be 1,000 new officers, according to a decision taken at the recent Council of Ministers held on Wednesday last.—Reuter.

From Here And There

Many local residents will learn with interest that Mr. George Razavet, formerly in the local offices of the C.P.R., but who for the last few years had been in Manila, is back in our midst again. He is taking over the place of Mr. Stanley Garrod, who is due to go on leave very shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. Poletti, of Canton, passed through the Colony last week on their way to Europe where they will spend their leave. Mr. Poletti, who is in the Customs in Canton, is a brother of the Postal Commissioner in Peking.

The many friends of Mrs. D. White will be glad to learn that her son, Arthur, is now out of danger after having been critically ill for about a week. It was at first thought that he had appendicitis, but on being taken to the hospital it was found that the complaint was peritonitis.

Capt. and Mrs. J. D. Jalani, who have been on a visit to Shanghai and Japan, together with their little daughter, have returned to the Colony again. Capt. Jalani is in the Indian Medical Service, being attached to the Kowloon Military Hospital, and it is learned that he will shortly complete his term of service here and will return to India, prior to being given his next appointment.

Mr. Jimmy Smith, brother of the lady hockey-interpreter, who has joined the Home staff of Messrs. Butterfield and Swire, is due to arrive here by the s.s. Comorin.

Miss L. Gutierrez, a prominent member of the Portuguese community in Shanghai, is at present on a business visit to the Colony. She is staying at the Gloucester Hotel and will, it is understood, remain in Hong Kong for about a fortnight.

The former Miss Irene Deacon, who was married yesterday to Mr. Arthur Braude at St. John's Cathedral. (King's Studio).

The many friends of Mrs. E. L. Agassiz will be very pleased to learn that she has fully recovered from her recent illness and is out and about again. Mrs. Agassiz is one of the many people who favour living in the New Territories, having been a resident at Fanling for many years.

News has been received in the Colony from Mr. S. Perry to the effect that he intends joining the London Stock Exchange, and it is understood that for that reason he will be giving up his seat in the Hong Kong Bullion Brokers' Association.

Among the passengers who sailed aboard the s.s. General Lee were the Misses Ada and Vicky Kowalska, who are returning to Harbin via Shanghai, after an enjoyable vacation in Hong Kong.

Miss Marguerite Theresa Gutierrez held a small tea party last week on the occasion of her eleventh birthday. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Gutierrez.

PLEA FOR A CITY BEAUTIFUL JUST HOW WILL YOUNG CHINA REACT? BEAUTY AND USEFULNESS HAND IN HAND

(By A Special Correspondent)

It is a generally accepted fact that in this Colony art, in any of its manifold expressions, reveals traces of the divergent ideals of the East and the West. It has been said that art cannot really be understood without going far back into its history, and tracing its course down to the present time, and that only in this way is it possible to grasp the line of its true development.

We have heard many complaints that the younger of the architects of the post-war school show a great tendency to ignore that lesson and that it is a rushing to the other extreme practiced by the architects of say, fifty or sixty years ago. They had an exaggerated reverence for the past but both of the extremist schools may be said to have shown tendencies equally futile.

In the middle of the last century there were two men, Norman Shaw and Philip Webb, who had a great influence on English architecture. Real students of their profession, they were never slow in introducing new ideas, but at the same time they never professed to ignore the lessons of the past.

There was one section of the architects in England about ten years ago who said that there must be only one style, that of the present, and that the style must not also been humorously said that Hong Kong has at least one style of its own—the "style compradoric."

It would be highly interesting if some prominent local architect gave us a lecture, say at the Rotary Club, upon local architecture, and I feel sure that most of them have the sense of humour that is essential to explain the reason for the appearance of some of our buildings. There is, of course, the difficulty of professional etiquette, but that point could easily be overcome.

Monotony In Type

All sorts of schools have influenced our local architecture. One sees traces of Europe, Asia and America, and the one thing that is noticeable about Chinese architecture is its monotony of type, and this may be explained by the statement that most people responsible for the designs of these buildings are mesmerised and obsessed by what might be aptly described as "oleo custom." The felt tents of the nomad Khans enslaved them to the marquee pattern, the sag of that material being shown in the upturned eaves, in the curve of the ridge, and in the tremors caused by the wind which the tiling is supposed to make real. Despite all this, however, there is something wonderful about some of the great only be efficient but also that it triumphs of the Chinese architects, and it is well nigh impossible to visit the Temple of Heaven, the Forbidden City or the Summer Palace at Peking, without recognising, if not the ability of the architect, the genius of the true artist. It was colour and setting, not mathematical calculations, that were so wonderful in old Peking.

A City Beautiful

Taking a peep into the future, one pauses to ask, what is there in store for us? Will China take as its patterns the buildings of Hong Kong and other larger cities? Will American utilitarianism swamp out the glory and colour and the beautiful settings designed by artists of the days before foreign educational influences produced Young China? We cannot say, but this we can do, and that is to plead the value of trying to make buildings beautiful as well as useful. Man cannot live by bread alone; bricks and stucco work do not lead our thoughts to the highest things in life. Can we persuade all concerned to work harder for the sacred cause of a city beautiful?

Local Share Market

Messrs. Harriman's Weekly Report

Messrs. G. A. Harriman & Co.'s weekly share report and market review issued at noon yesterday states:—

Quiet and subdued markets have been the order this past week and the post Settlement activity, anticipated last week has not yet materialised. Local stocks appear to still be affected by the political situation in North China and pending more reassuring news, buyers are timid and reluctant to add to their commitments. There is no evident weakness, but a general disinclination to deal, in fact the market may best be described as being in a stupor.

The volume of business transacted
 on the Manila Stock Exchange has dwindled considerably and that market must have experienced the dullest week of many active ones, with quotations changing only very slightly throughout the period, although closing slightly lower on balance.

Here in Hong Kong rates are mostly nominal, pending more active trading. Hong Kong Electric have steeled to $54, small sales have been executed at this. China Lights are either side of $14.50 for cash at $14.80 December.
 Telephones (old) came to business at $29 and the New at $10.70.
 Trams exchanged at $11.90, but close 25 cents higher on the week at $12.25 sales. Star Ferries sold at $93 and Yau-mat Ferries are now up to $25.

Dairies have small enquiries at $22.25. Cements stagnate around $11.50 and Ropes are freely offered at $3.80.

Among Cotton shares transactions are reported in Ewas at $810.70, Shanghai Cottons (old) at $76 and the New at $43. Zoong Sings are $17 nominal. (Quotations in Shanghai currency).

Hong Kong Banks and Unions have been steadily appreciating for some time past, and the first named are now $1670 and Unions at $604 with transactions reported at these rates.

Union Water Boats sold at $10.50, Wharfs at $111 and Pro-vidents (old) at between $2.17% and $2.10, closing. Hotels keep fully steady. Just prior to October Settlement exchanges were made up to $6.30, but in view of the prevailing apathetic market, shares are now obtainable at 10 cents under this.

Following upon a sharp rise in Rubber there is some local enquiry for Straits Rubbers and offers of shares are invited. Broga Rubbers were dealt in at 90 cts.
 (Straits) ad Lumas are enquired for at $1.82%.

Philippine Mining:—United States election uncertainties appear to be affecting this market, which is exceptional quiet. Antamoks have stood alone and are very steady at $7. Atoks were dealt in between $1.15 and $1.11.
 Baguios and Benguet Explorations are lower at 57 cts. and 35 cts.
 respectively. Big Wedge are also off a few points at 85 cts. and Con-active at 9 1/4 cts. middle. Demonstrations have come down to $1.66, Masbates to 95 cts., and Northern Mines to 45 cts. Paracale Gumaos, which are a limited (and difficult) market have declined to $1.47. Salacots were sold at 13 1/4 cts. and 13 1/2 cts. San Mauricio have also suffered and close lower at $5.75, whilst both Suyco and United Paracales have lost ground at $1.15 and $3.45 respectively.

Mr. Begdon was admitted to membership of the British Federation of Master Printers, the Amalgamated Society of Lithographers, and was made honorary member of a number of British and American societies of printers, etchers, publishers and advertising clubs.
 He is the author of a treatise on colour printing and papers on printing, publicity and kindred subjects.

Mr. Begdon was appointed by the late Mr. E. F. Goodale, Treasurer of the Shanghai Municipal Council to manage the Publicity Bureau which was established over the period of emergency by the Council in 1927. In 1932 Mr.
 Begdon was transferred to Hong Kong in the South China interests of an important American marketing organisation, and over a year ago, was appointed secretary to The Hong Kong Travel Association.

Mr. Begdon has travelled extensively in Europe, America, Canada and the Far East. He is a member of several of the leading clubs in China, including the Shanghai Club, the Shanghai Columbia Country Club, the Peak Club, Hong Kong, etc.

In the field of recreation he favours riding, swimming and tennis, although at one time he was a keen devotee of football, while his pastimes are reading and music. He was a student of the Irish Harp, is an Irish piper of repute and a gold medalist authority on ancient gaelic music and dancing.

The latest photograph of Mrs. C. S. Russell, wife of the general manager of the Queen's, Alhambra and Star Theatres.

MR. R. M. Henderson, Director of Public Works, returned to the Colony from home leave last Wednesday, looking extremely fit and well after his furlough. He has taken up residence on the Peak again.

Mr. R. B. Wood, of the Colonial Secretariat, is due to return to the Colony from home leave early in December. While on leave he went to the Berlin Olympic Games in company with Mr. W. F. Kerr who, incidentally, is also due back shortly.

Mr. L. W. Wade has recently arrived in the Colony to take up the post of acting accountant of the National City Bank of New York in the place of Mr. W. Staley, who has been transferred to Peking. Mrs. Wade and family are also in the Colony.

Mr. W. Bell, superintendent engineer in Messrs. Butterfield and Swire's Shanghai office, arrived in the Colony last week. He is accompanied by Mrs. Bell and they, too, have taken rooms at the Gloucester Hotel.

HIS Excellency the Governor, Sir Andrew Caldecott, has consented to become a patron of the New Territories Agricultural Association, an institution which has been working for the benefit of the farmers in the New Territories for the past 10 years.

Mr. H. J. Armstrong, of the well-known legal firm of Messrs. Deacons, is due to proceed on home leave shortly. He has booked his passage by the m.v. Victoria, which sails from Hong Kong on November 21, and will join Mrs. Armstrong and family who are already in England.

Mr. E. S. Abraham, the well-known local bullion broker, is a patient in the War Memorial Hospital, but his many friends will be happy to learn that the complaint is not a serious one and that it is hoped that he will be out again very shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Costello are two other residents who have just come back from the North. In this case, Mr. Costello, who is the general passenger agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was away, not on pleasure but on business for his firm. Incidentally, Mr. L. E. N. Ryan, of the freight and operating department of the same firm, is due to return in the Colony from leave very shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Fredericks, who are at home now, are enjoying their holiday immensely, according to news received recently by friends. Mr. Fredericks is a partner in the well-known exchange brokers' firm of Messrs. A. and S. Hancock.

Miss E. Turbutt, assistant matron at the Diocesan Girls' School, who has been away on six months' leave in Ireland is due back here on November 19.

PERSONALIA.

A group photograph taken at Mr. Kenneth Chan's house in the New Territories, where the Euro-American Returned Students' Association held their conference last week. (King's Studio).

WE have been informed that Mr. J. E. Joseph, the well-known local financier, has offered to put up a house, near the Fanling Railway Station, to be used as headquarters for the New Territories Agricultural Association. Work will begin shortly, the site having been granted free by the Government. Mr. C. Tetzel, the Hon. Secretary of the Association, is in charge of all the arrangements.

The many friends of Captain and Mrs. Vivian Petherick will be interested to learn that they will be leaving Liverpool for Hong Kong by the s.s. Sarpedon on December 20, next, together with their sons Albert and Rodney. They have been spending a holiday in the Old Country for the past six months.

Mr. I. W. Lang, the travelling passenger agent of the Canadian Pacific Railways, returned to the Colony last Wednesday morning by the R.M.S. Empress of Asia, having spent about two weeks in Manila.

The many friends of Miss Nee Sa Long will be interested to learn that she has now fully recovered from a bout of influenza and is out and about again.

Miss H. D. Sawyer, Headmistress of the Diocesan Girls' School, is due back in the Colony on November 19, after having been away on leave since February last. She went home via Australia, New Zealand, and Canada, and is returning to Hong Kong via Canada.

Mr. Norman Deltz, the well-known local jockey, who is also connected with the local share market, returned to the Colony yesterday from Manila, where he spent a short holiday.

MISS Ruby Simoes, a very popular member of the younger set in the local Indian community, gave an extremely successful party last week to mark the anniversary of her birthday. Miss Simoes came from Malaya some years ago and has now made her home permanently in the Colony.

"Guess the lady." That will be the most interesting part of the Bal Masque to be held at the Gloucester next Friday. A number of the leading members of the younger set will be acting as dance hostesses.

Two very popular members of the Chinese community, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Chan, have returned to the Colony after having spent a holiday, extending over two months, in Shanghai and Japan.

Mr. and Mrs. P. T. A. Ameide are amongst the most recent arrivals in Hong Kong for their holiday. They are from Surabaya, where they are very popular members of the European community.

LITTLE NOTES of Great Importance

Want to give the gift of gifts? And you'll have fun choosing it too if you visit BREWERS BOOKSHOP, and go through their astonishing selection of new books. You'll find something there for everyone in the family, from the toddler up. Lovely picture books, all the annuals the kiddies love to find on Xmas morning, the detective yarn, sports book, adventure, for the brother, the lighter, the more serious, just as they like them. And calendars and Xmas cards that speak of the East—especially of Hong Kong. Visit BREWERS BOOKSHOP early—and find all you want.

What the well-dressed woman wears underneath can be seen at PAUL RENNETS (that's definitely no invitation to men) . . . the very latest styles of Jaeger and Morley underwear, light and warm and the prices just as attractive. And you'll want to see their gloves too . . . there is a new shipment of them and everything that Paris, London, New York have decreed to be the fashion of the season you'll find there for real warmth as well as style, you'll find some furlined. And though the style is Rue de la Paix—the price isn't.

The Eskimo thought his igloo was a palace until he saw the white man's house. You think your radio a marvel, but wait until you see and hear the 1937 Zenith models . . . to do so you have only to visit the INTERNATIONAL SALES AND SERVICE, 27 Hankow Road, Kowloon. There you will learn what selectivity, sensitivity and tone quality can mean. Servicing is done by qualified British technicians; private houses, hotels, canteens, messes, H.M. Ships and Merchant Navy visited periodically for testing radios and equipment. All these things so often neglected in the Colony.

Wedding gowns are very, very important . . . and if you're not quite sure what you want, or know you want the loveliest, our advice is to visit LANE, CRAWFORD'S. They have some gorgeous creations of white satin with lovely, original necklines and sleeves, with long, graceful trains. Some are of ivory lace, soft and light. There are tulle and lace veils held by a halo of pearls . . . Indeed, all the accessories for the perfectly groomed bride. Gowns for the bridesmaids, white lace trimmed with corsage of orchids, organdie of pastel shade . . . With their help your wedding ceremony would be one long-remembered.

Another Xmas special! . . . And here's one none of you can afford to miss, for you all want to send home gifts that carry with them the special beauty of the East. The JADE TREE has a wonderful selection of such gifts, all specially chosen to please you, the thoughtful and discriminating giver of lovely gifts. They have specially designed jewellery and jewellery boxes, specially selected underwear, luxurious and soft but with prices that will attract you, lovely tree decorations for the table of clear, translucent stone, and still a thousand others . . . there's everything to be gained by a visit to these amazing JADE TREE shops.

A fine camera study of Miss D. Jerrard, of Kowloon. (King's Studio).

Seen At The Gloucester

IF not "the world," certainly "Hong Kong and his wife" were at the Gloucester again on Saturday night, to say nothing of many bachelors and spinsters! A great number had dinner there and several came in after dining in their own homes to swell the crowd. If everyone had got on the floor at once there certainly would not have been room to dance.

Mrs. Clough Taylor, who was giving a little dinner party, was wearing a dark blue frock with a very novel neckline. It was high in front, but cut away low under the arms. The back was also originally treated with a single, straight split from neck to waist. A wide silver belt added the finishing touch.

Another dark blue dress was that worn by Mrs. Lock; it was trimmed with a very fine gold edging on the neckline; she carried a red chiffon scarf in one hand. Chiffon is certainly a lovely material for evening, and Miss Stranach's pale blue frock with floating scarf-like ends was very pretty. Miss Stranach, we understand, is paying a short visit to Hong Kong from Shanghai.

Mrs. Campling was wearing yellow, which is not so usual a shade for evening dresses as it ought to be. Miss Valerie Morris's silvery blue satin dress was very effective. Her sister was also there in a different party.

Mrs. D'Arcy Evans' dark blue frock was smart with its skirt split up a few inches at the back. Miss Peggy Murrow's backless black satin was originally lightened by a wreath of small imitation rosebuds that followed the neckline and gave the appearance of a garland. Mrs. Bathurst was wearing a pretty flowered voile, the background of which was white; it had a sash of red and blue.

Mrs. Scott was in pink satin, and Mrs. Shannon in pink lace. Mrs. Rump, who has only recently arrived in Hong Kong from home, was dipping in a black and white voile frock.

Among others we noticed were Signor Bianconi, Major and Mrs. Kirby, Mr. Henriquez, Mr. and Mrs. Potts, Mr. Ferguson, Mr. Fielden, Mr. Parker Jervis, Mr. and Mrs. Harriman, Mr. Pirrie, Mr. Stocker and Mr. Wood. Mr. Walker was celebrating his very happy sweepstake win at Happy Valley that afternoon.

Diners At The Blue Room

THE Blue Room at the Peninsula Hotel was again as crowded as ever on Friday of last week. There were two or three big dinner parties; Major and Mrs. Grune were host and hostess at one of them. Mrs. Grune was in a blue and white patterned frock with a blue pleated frilly trimming round the neckline. Mrs. O'Flynn, who was one of her guests, was in white with a belt of twisted silver tinsel and some gay looking flowers on her shoulder.

Mrs. Bates and Mrs. Gray were in the same party, the former in a pink lace frock with a belt of the original—and very attractive—contrast of turquoise blue velvet. Her turquoise earrings and clip carried out the colour scheme. Mrs. Gray was in black relieved with diamante clips and a wide diamante bracelet.

A very pretty dress was that worn by Mrs. Campbell; it was of white voile sprinkled with mauve flowers, with a mauve sash and a poey of the same colour on one shoulder.

Mrs. Morris-Jones, who has just come back here from Singapore (it will be remembered that her husband, Captain Morris-Jones, has been stationed in Singapore for the last six months or so, and has now returned to finish his Far East tour in Hong Kong), was in a flesh pink satin frock with a full sleeves effect.

Mrs. Postle was in black lace; it was a smart frock with long sleeves that left the shoulders quite bare. Mrs. Dowling, who was dining quietly with her husband, was also in black, but it was of velvet and the corsage was white, the materials being joined in a slanting line; she carried a small black coat. Mrs. Barber was in a dark brown frock with little wing sleeves. Miss Kelly was wearing a flowered dress, while Mrs. Brigham was in black with a silver collar.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe, Shoong, of Oakland, California, have arrived in the Colony for a holiday after having spent some time in Shanghai and the North. They have taken a suite of rooms at the Gloucester Hotel and it is their intention to remain here for some time before returning to Oakland, where Mr. Shoong has very extensive business connections.

LITTLE NOTES of Great Importance

Baby isn't breaking my heart and trying my nerves any longer with perpetual crying, griping, acidity, flatulence, and all these trying little complaints apt to come at teething time. I sought a remedy—and I found one: WATSON'S BABY WATER . . . nothing like it. It relieves baby instantly and brings a smile. They used to say there wasn't a mother who didn't find baby's first year the most trying and most difficult in her life, but not now . . . not with WATSON'S BABY WATER near at hand. And all that blessing for but 25 cents a bottle.

Cooking is an art which claims to lead to a man's heart by way of his stomach—but how about the skin which they love to touch? There's no better capital for a woman than a radiant, velvety skin. You've only to go to MAIZEE'S and claim the remarkable Helena Rubenstein beauty preparations—the key to loveliness and eternal youth! In just a few pots are the dreams of a century; whether you're young or middle-aged, a woman of wealth or a woman with a limited income, you may use these one and only beauty preparations of the future—drawn from two supreme sources, nature and science!

You don't wear a bathing costume that covers your knees, nor do you wear flannel petticoats . . . And simply because you're a modern woman. But then as a modern woman, do you know every new idea that's been created about beauty? Ten to one you do, and ten to one you know all there is to know about the BONCILLA preparations at the GRAND DISPENSARY, the Nourishing Cream, Cleansing Cream, and All-purpose Cream. They're something every really modern skin must have! So if you're the one in ten, just take a lesson from those who know—use BONCILLA and be sure of a lovely face and lovely hands.

Those who manufacture the EMA brand products, the Jams, Marmalades, Fruit Butters, Jellies, understand the spice of variety, the charm of a product that is different, an improvement on what we've been used to, the appeal of daintiness in their attractive glass jars, which, incidentally, are an added decoration to the table, do away with the "metal" flavour of the usual jams. And they are ideal for use in those things the family most loves—tarts, cakes, and waffles, etc. From all leading provisioners.

How would you like to be Mary Queen of Scots? . . . or at any rate as lovely as she? You've only to pay a visit to DOLLY VARDEN's—they've a lovely model that would do the trick . . . the selfsame one worn by Katherine Hepburn in the film of Mary. And you'll see a lot of others as classically lovely . . . and suits with swallowtail and cut-away jackets and straight skirts, or skirts that flare with circular movement. All as port as can be. Brilliant brocade and embroidered tunics, frocks with fancy hems of fur or cloth, or pepped up with bright colour pipings and bands . . . All the secrets!

PRETTY CATHEDRAL WEDDING

"Silver And Gold" Affair

BRAUDE — DEACON

One of the prettiest "silver and gold" weddings seen in Hong Kong in recent years was solemnised at St. John's Cathedral yesterday when Miss Irene Maude Deacon, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Deacon, became the bride of Mr. Arthur N. Braude, A. E. (E. E.), A.M.A.I.E.E., the eldest son of the Rev. A. St. Claire-Braude, and Mrs. Harding.

Both bride and bridegroom are very popular members of the Colony's younger set and Mr. Braude, who was educated at George Heriot's, Edinburgh, is Maintenance Engineer at the Hong Kong Telephone Company Ltd. He is a very keen volunteer, holding the rank of 2nd Lieutenant and is O.C. Machine Gun Battalion, Signals' Section, who provided a motor-cycle escort for the bride from her home to the Cathedral, and after the church ceremony, for the happy couple to the Hong Kong Hotel, where the reception was held.

The Rev. H. W. Baines officiated, and the bride presented a very charming picture as she entered the church on the arm of her father, by whom she was given away. She wore a glistening gown of silver brocade angelskin cut on Renaissance lines, a copy of a Jean Larvin model veil embroidered with silver, and her head-dress was a twisted rope of pearls finished with orange blossom. She carried a bouquet of arm lilies specially sent from Manila, and Scotch heather which arrived by air mail.

The bride was attended by three bridesmaids, the Misses Kathleen Glover, Edith Hopkins and Janie Weller, who wore gold lame gowns with green taffeta underskirts and bows. They wore gold flower circlets on the head, and carried bouquets of pastel shaded African daisies tied with gold ribbons.

The bride's mother wore a bottle green chiffon velvet gown, cut on the latest tunic lines, with hat, shoes and bag to match. Mrs. Deacon carried a bouquet of orchids which had been specially sent from Manila.

Mr. T. P. Sanderson carried out the duties of best man, while Messrs. H. Cameron Watson, A. Drummond and J. Forbes were the groomsmen. Over 250 guests attended the reception in the health of the happy couple.

The Scottish Psalm "Old Dundee" and the hymn "O Perfect Love" were sung at the Church ceremony.

The honeymoon is being spent in Shanghai and Hangchow, the bride's going away dress being a grey two-piece suit trimmed with scarlet, with a grey coat trimmed with astrakhan to match. She wore a scarlet hat and carried a bag of the same colour.

EQUINE SPORTS CLUB

Annual Dinner And Dance

HAPPY GATHERING AT THE PENINSULA HOTEL

Despite the many counter-attractions, the first annual dinner-dance of the Equine Sports Club, held at the Peninsula Hotel last evening, was very well attended and proved an unqualified success from every point of view. The Rose Room, where the dance was held, was very tastefully decorated and amongst those who attended were Mr. Lawrence Kadoorie, the patron of the Club, Mr. and Mrs. K. Begdon, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Maund, Mr. Munton, Mrs. Steele, Miss Gubbay, Mr. W. A. Rutterfield, Mrs. B. Elder, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Shim, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sin, Mr. and Mrs. Rose, Mr. and Mrs. Turnbull, Mr. and Mrs. Sweeney, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Quie, Mr. Gill, Mrs. and Miss Woodford, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, Mr. A. Dinnen, Mr. L. Landau, Mr. G. Gilles, Mr. F. A. Olsen and many others.

Chairman's Speech

A very attractive dinner was prepared by the Hotel chef, while the table was arranged in the shape of a horse-shoe. In addressing the meeting, Mr. J. L. Quie, president of the Club, said:

"It is very gratifying to the Committee and myself to see so many members and friends here tonight—the occasion of our first annual dinner. Although the evening is yet early I think it safe to make a prophecy that it is going to be a complete success, which augurs well for future similar events."

"A great deal of hard work has been done by the sub-committee formed to make the arrangements to-night, and our thanks and congratulations are due to Mr. and Mrs. Dinnen and Mr. Rose. Our thanks are also due to Mr. Diamond for his hearty co-operation."

Proposed Gymkhana

"I want to take this opportunity to inform members that it is proposed to hold a gymkhana at the end of November—the exact date of which will be notified later. We hope to see as good an attendance of members and friends then as we have here to-night—in fact, we are hoping that by that time many of the guests here to-night will have become members and joined our happy family. Most of the items in this gymkhana will be novelty events, where even the most inexperienced rider stands a chance. I may mention that the Kadoorie Cup, presented by our Patron, will be awarded to the member securing the most number of points over the day."

CHINESE STYLE PAINTINGS

Students' Work On Exhibition

The exhibition of Chinese style paintings, the work of the students of the Government Vernacular Middle School, was concluded yesterday at 1 p.m.

Over 60 paintings had been displayed in the Education Department Board Room since last Monday. As expected, the work was sometimes scholarly and heavy in technique, but those which were done by the higher middle school students showed a sense of delicacy and freshness.

One of the best exhibits was one entitled "The Hermit's Cottage" by Master Wong Chi-kin. His work gives great promise of an interesting and successful career.

"The presence of Mr. Kadoorie here to-night shows the interest he has in the welfare of the Club and I take this opportunity of calling upon him to say a few words."

Mr. Kadoorie's Speech

Mr. Lawrence Kadoorie replied as follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen, — It gives me very much pleasure to be here to-night, and to see how the Equine Sports Club has succeeded and expanded since I last addressed you."

"That you have to listen to me again is due to your very energetic and enthusiastic president. You run a great risk—having heard me twice I do not doubt that there will still be a third time."

"In thanking you for this very pleasant evening, courtesy demands that I should not inflict upon you a long peroration. Let me only make of this an occasion to wish you continued prosperity, co-operation and happiness."

"We are now sitting around the largest horseshoe in Hong Kong—I hope it may bring to us all, jointly and severally, the very best of luck."

INAUGURATION OF NEW SERVICE

7.1/2-HOUR TRIP FROM SHANGHAI

45 MINUTES TO CANTON

By Dai Enki,

Managing Director of C.N.A.C.

In 1929 the National Government of China planned the establishment of a network of modern commercial airlines throughout the country, and the foundation-stone was laid in the creation of the China National Aviation Corporation. The Ministry of Communications was delegated to negotiate with China Airways Federal Inc., U.S.A., an agreement for the financing and operation of the company jointly. In order that the control of the company should rest with the Government, the company was registered at the Ministry of Industry and Commerce, with head offices in Shanghai, the Ministry subscribing 55 per cent. of the capital and China Airways 45 per cent.

The development of airlines in China by the China National Aviation Corporation was at first concentrated in the establishment of an air service between Shanghai and Chengtu, via Nanking, Anking, Kluksing, Hankow, Shasi, Ichang, Wanhsien and Chungking, all of these points being important commercial centres along the mighty Yangtze River.

The history of commercial aviation in China actually commenced on October 20, 1929, when the first mail and passenger plane left Shanghai for Hankow on its maiden trip, covering the distance of 864 Km. in seven hours' flying time. From that date to September 1935 service on this route was maintained by the use of Loening flying boats.

On September 20, 1935, tri-motored Ford planes were placed on service on the Shanghai-Hankow section, replacing the Loenings on this section, and thereby immediately reducing the flying time between Shanghai and Hankow by two hours and making it also possible for a plane to fly the round trip Shanghai-Hankow-Shanghai in one day.

The public's attention was, however, more particularly drawn to the advantages of commercial aviation on October 23, 1935, when the first Douglas Transport plane was placed on service on this line and the section Shanghai-Hankow was covered in less than three hours' flying time. A twice-weekly Express Service between Shanghai and Chengtu was inaugurated largely been accomplished by the

The China National Aviation Corporation will commence a flying-boat service from Shanghai to Canton via Hong Kong on November 6, 1936.

The schedule will be as follows:—
Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday
Leave Shanghai 6.30 a.m. arrive in Hong Kong 2.00 p.m.
Leave Hong Kong 2.30 p.m. arrive in Canton 3.15 p.m.
Wednesday, Friday and Sunday
Leave Canton 6.30 a.m. arrive in Hong Kong 7.15 a.m.
Leave Hong Kong 7.30 a.m. arrive in Shanghai 3.15 p.m.

with Douglas Transport planes, the distance between Shanghai and Chengtu, 1974 Km., being covered in less than seven flying hours. In July 1936 the Express Service from Shanghai to Chengtu was augmented to three trips weekly.

Shanghai-Peking Line
Service on this route was inaugurated on January 10, 1933, when a Stinson monoplane took off from Shanghai for Peiping, via Hsichow, Tsingtao and Tientsin, all important commercial ports on the North China Coast, covering the distance of 1197 Km. in seven and a half hours' flying time. On May 14, 1935, rapid service was put into effect between Shanghai and Peiping, via Nanking, Tsingtao and Tientsin, by the use of the Douglas Transport, the longer distance of 1327 Km. via Nanking being covered in four and a half hours' flying time. At first two round trips weekly were flown by the Douglas Transport, but the popularity of this service induced the company on June 9, 1935, to increase the schedule flown by the Douglas Transport to four round trips weekly, a round trip Shanghai-Peiping-Shanghai being flown by the same plane in one day. It would not be out of place to emphasise here the fine work of the various flight crews in completing flights of 2,654 Km. in a single day.

Shanghai-Canton Line
The Shanghai-Canton Line, via Wenchow, Foochow, Amoy and Swatow, all important ports along the South China Coast, was inaugurated on October 24, 1935, with Sikorsky flying boats. The Sikorsky planes were replaced in November, 1934 by the faster Douglas Dolphin Flying Boats, and with this equipment the distance of 1,623 Km. between Shanghai and Canton is covered in less than seven hours' flying time.

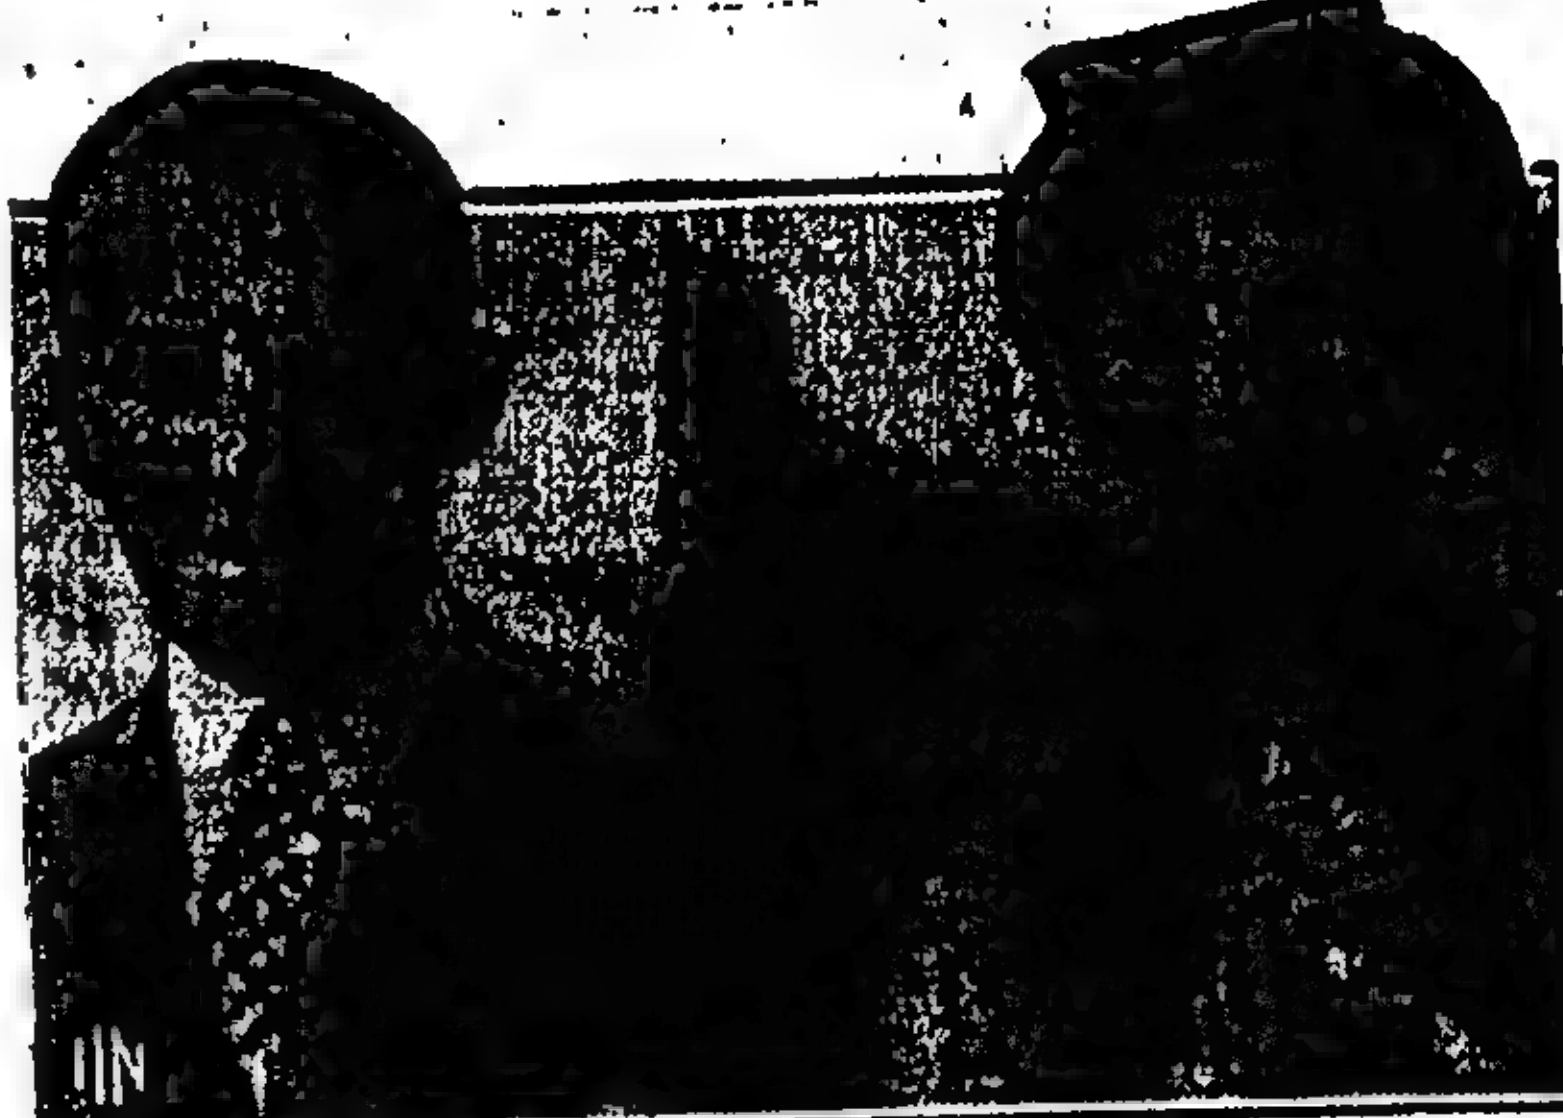

untiring energy and insistence of H. E. the Governor of Hong Kong, Sir Andrew Caldecott.

Present-day Travel
It is possible to-day to travel by the huge modern planes of the C.N.A.C. throughout China, from north to south, from east to west, and far into the interior of the country, with the greatest saving of time. The manifold difficulties, hardships and discomforts of travelling to remote parts of this country are now things of the past, and in the near future all of the 18 Provinces of this country will be accessible with ease and comfort to air travellers.

Aside from the many advantages commercial aviation gives to commerce and the public in general by speeding up the means of communications and travel, commercial aviation has proved and will continue to prove to be a great aid to the Government in controlling and governing a country as large as China. Whereas it formerly took days, weeks and even months for officials entrusted with important duties to travel between the Capital and distant Provincial cities, it is now only a question of hours. It can be truly said that commercial aviation has done a good deal towards the aim of the National Government—peaceful unity of the people of China.

Public Services
Of recent years the China National Aviation Corporation, once their pioneering efforts were successfully accomplished, have been working with patience and energy towards giving the public a service comparable with the best of any other country in the world. Small and slow planes have been gradually replaced by huge and fast equipment. Ground facilities and safety devices have been brought technically up to date.

It must not be imagined that success came as a matter of course. It is only the public's support, backed up by the enthusiasm and co-operation of the entire personnel of the various departments of the company, that enabled the company to overcome great difficulties in its pioneering days. Contrary to established practice throughout the world, this company since the day it was founded has been financed and operated as purely a commercial undertaking without receiving from the Government anything in the nature of a subsidy.

The increase in mail and passenger traffic during recent years enabled the company in 1935 to purchase three tri-motored Ford planes and two Douglas Transport planes. In the meantime the fleet of the company has been increased by one more Douglas Transport plane and before the end of the year flying-boats (Sikorsky S-48) will be added to the company's flying equipment. The tri-motored Fords carry 10 passengers and have a cruising speed of 230 Km. per hour, the Douglas Transport planes carry 14 passengers at a cruising speed of 300 Km. per hour and the Sikorsky flying-boat will carry 18 passengers at a cruising speed of 280 Km. per hour.

First-Class Personnel
The company is justly proud of its flying personnel, consisting of ten American pilots and four Chinese pilots, whose ability is rated as equal in every respect to that of pilots in any other country. In addition to the above-mentioned 14 pilots, the company has in its employ 14 Chinese co-pilots whose training and experience form a valuable source of reserve for pilots at a future date. All of the C.N.A.C. pilots and co-pilots are trained in the use of direction-finding and homing devices, these being the latest and most modern instruments available for better and safer operations.

With the introduction of larger passenger-carrying aeroplanes, the company has been able gradually to reduce passenger fares on all lines. The following is a list of the reductions made, which vary between 10 and 40 per cent., and it is interesting to note that these reductions have resulted in an increase in passenger business and receipts:—

COMPARISON OF FARES ON THE VARIOUS ROUTES
Shanghai-Hankow: 1929 $200, June 15, 1934 $150, Oct. 22, 1935 $120. Total Reduction 40 per cent.
Hankow-Chungking: 1929 $300, Oct. 22, 1935 $240. Total Reduction 20 per cent.
Chungking-Chengtu: 1934 $100, Oct. 22, 1935 $80. Total Reduction 10 per cent.
Shanghai-Chengtu: 1934 $350, Oct. 22, 1935 $300. Total Reduction 14 per cent.
Shanghai-Peiping: 1933 $220, June 15, 1934 $180, May 14, 1935 $150. Total Reduction 32 per cent.
Shanghai-Canton: 1934 $270, July 1, 1935 $220. Total Reduction 18 per cent.

During the early pioneering years of the development of the China National Aviation Corporation, the charges for airmail transportation were based upon a system of zones, with an airmail surcharge of 25 cents per 20 grammes per 1,000 Km., thus making the rate for one zone 25 cents plus 5 cents ordinary postage, that is 30 cents, with a two-zone rate of 55 cents, three zones 80 cents, and four zones $1.05.

Zones Eliminated
On March 1, 1936, with the co-operation of the Directorate General of Posts, all zones were eliminated and a domestic rate was established for all points in China of 30 cents per 20 grammes.

While this constructive move has for the moment resulted in a temporary decrease in airmail revenue for the company, the elimination of the zone system was enthusiastically received by the public and the company confident that the progress which will be made during the next five years.

CORRESPONDENCE

Cash Sweeps

[To The Editor, "Sunday Herald"]
Sir,—It was obvious, from the advertised amounts of the prizes in the sweepstake on the Kwangtung Handicap last week, that a number of the tickets sold were not represented in the draw—presumably because the money paid by the buyers had not been remitted by the sellers.

I am sure I am voicing a general wish when I request the sweep authorities, in future, to publish the numbers that are not included in the draw for any reason, so that buyers may feel certain that their number went into the drum.

PUNTER.

"Y"—This is a matter for the Church Authorities, and it would serve no useful purpose to ventilate the grievance in a newspaper.—Ed.

One of the most vital problems now facing the C.N.A.C. and the development of commercial aviation in China is the urgent need of proper and modern airports in all the important cities served by commercial airlines.

It is unfortunate to have to say that those cities whose duty it is to supply and maintain airports as well as they maintain harbour and river facilities, have not kept up with the march of time in aviation. The only exception is the excellent Municipal Airport at Lung-hwa (Shanghai). There is no aeroplane made or probably never will be made which cannot land on the Municipal Airport at Lung-hwa with perfect ease and safety. Such facilities should be prevalent in all the important cities in China.

Important Requirements
Every city in China now being served by its two commercial aviation companies, the C.N.A.C. and Eurasia Aviation Corporation, should have airports of not less than 1,000 metres square, free of obstructions, well drained, and having hard surfaced runways and night landing facilities.

The importance of better airfields is by no means over emphasised. Commercial aviation in China to-day has reached the limits of its growth and efficiency with its present air-fields. Further development will be retarded, in fact is now being retarded, until the airfields are improved to the degree required for more up-to-date flying. Then the pace of progress will be kept up, as we are trying hard to keep it up under the present circumstances.

It is encouraging to note that many of the cities aforesaid are beginning to realise the vital importance of this problem and it is confidently believed that the Government and people will further extend to commercial aviation the hearty support they have rendered in the past. Given proper air-fields and facilities, it is safe to prophesy that the progress made by commercial aviation in China during the past five years will be completely eclipsed by the progress which will be made during the next five years.

BRIDGE NOTES

BY ELY CULBERTSON

RECEPTIVE TACTICS

A FAVOURITE trick which has existed ever since the day almost forty years ago, when Bridge Whist first became a factor in the history of the Whist family, and yet has lost little of either its popularity or effectiveness, sometimes makes it possible for a Declarer to slip through a trick with a singleton King. The play is very crude and very obvious, yet there are several million bridge players who can still be depended upon to fall for it constantly.

It is well-known that when Declarer leads from Dummy toward an assumed King-Jack combination or its equivalent in his own hand, second hand, if he holds the Ace, should play low. His hope is that Declarer, who can win a trick with the King if the Ace is on his right, or establish his King for the next round by finessing the Jack if the Queen is on his right, will make the wrong guess. The purposes of Declarer must therefore be, when his King is unguarded, to create the impression that he plans to finesse. When the cards are placed as follows, he may gain the trick.

Assuming that some other suit is trump, South could lead from Dummy not a small heart, but the Jack. East is as likely as not to play low, hoping that South will let the Jack go through to West's Queen. Even when Dummy does not hold the Ten, the Jack should still be led, at times with gratifying results. Inasmuch as North must be prepared to lose a trick in any case unless some such extraordinary measures as these prove successful, it costs nothing to try.

Another means of avoiding a losing finesse is still more likely to succeed, because the defensive player whom Declarer is trying to deceive has no accurate means of telling just what sort of mistake the Declarer hopes to lure him into making.

In planning his play, South can see that one heart trick, one club trick and one diamond trick must be lost and that he has a further probable loser in spades. This last may be eliminated by means of a finesse, in which case the contract will be made. But because of East's bid, South assumes that the finesse will lose, and that he will be set.

There is a way of avoiding the losing spade finesse, however, by turning it into a trap into which East might well fall. The seven of spades is led to

Disturbing Public Tranquillity Need For More Plain Clothes Policemen Neighbourhood Aroused In Early Hours Of Morning

(From A Special Correspondent)

ONE of the Colony's perennial grievances is that there is far too much noise and too many "disturbances of public tranquillity," this being particularly the case during the night, and it is generally felt that something should be done by the authorities to remedy the matter.

Some time ago, in an interview with a senior Police Officer, I learned that a plan had been put into operation whereby motor drivers are warned to reduce the tootings of horns to an absolute minimum, but this does not appear to have had the desired effect.

It may be mentioned also that the noises complained of are not confined only to the tooting of motor-car horns, though it would perhaps be interesting to introduce "silent zones" where it would be illegal to sound one's horn after dark. The experiment has been working out with a fair measure of success at Home, and although it is said that Hong Kong's "jay walkers" are of the worst possible kind to be found in the world, an experiment, extending over a week, may give an indication of whether or not the plan would be a feasible one in our midst.

The worst offenders in this noise menace are not by any means the motor drivers. There is one other section of the community who create more noise and disturbance than should be tolerated by the authorities. I refer to the hawkers, and in the early mornings especially they visit some residential quarters where they inform the inhabitants in general, in the noisiest manner possible, of what they have to offer.

Worse Than Ever!

I know of a case, about two weeks ago, where a resident in Happy Valley made a complaint to the Police about the noise made by the newsboys. The following morning a "plain clothes" squad, comprising a European and two Chinese officers, went to the district concerned and arrested a few of the boys who were subsequently brought before the Juvenile Court. The district for the next three or four days was as quiet as could be desired and it appeared that the nuisance was remedied once and for all, but what happened after a week? The sellers were back again, crying their wares as lustily as ever. They might not have been the same boys, but they were there all the same!

The resident again sought the help of the authorities and this time he approached a Chinese constable, who happened to be in the vicinity at the time, but after the officer had heard all the much-injured and ill-used resident had to say, he replied calmly, "sorry no can do. Boy he see uniform, he chop chop run 'way. More better you talkie Station for him send plain clothes man catchee."

Seeing that there was something in the constable's argument, the resident concerned again reported the matter to the Police Station. The officer there was very courteous about it all and said he would "see what he could do," explaining that it was really a job for the plain clothes man, and as he was "rather short of plain clothes Europeans at the time it is a somewhat difficult job."

At this stage it would be pertinent to ask why should one particular station be short of plain clothes men? Are there not enough of them to go round and is this shortage just a temporary one? In any case if any one station finds itself in such an unhappy position as not to be able to cope with as simple a complaint as too much noise, what is going to happen in case of an emergency?

Heavy Tread

And while on the subject of shortage of plain clothes men and emergencies, there is just another point that may be brought to light. Indian and Chinese constables are provided with hob-nailed boots purely, it may be assumed, for the reason that such boots are naturally more durable than, for instance, ordinary walking shoes. While these boots may be all right for use in the day time, should not those officers on duty at night be provided with shoes that are less noisy? Not that the tramp, tramp of a policeman's footsteps can be described as a "disturbance of public tranquillity." Far from it. As a matter of fact it is more often than not, in the middle of the night when everything is quiet and still, very reassuring to hear the familiar footsteps, but at the same time the sound of these footsteps carry very far at night when there is no rumble of the tram cars, tooting of motor horns and the hundred other noises so common in the day which render the same footsteps almost noiseless, and if a burglar or any other bad character is "on the job" he might easily be warned of a policeman's approach by his footsteps, and this seems rather a pity. I once asked a Police sergeant why he did not wear rubber shoes when on night patrol and was promptly told that it was because he would have had to provide them himself!

Wise and Otherwise.

Logical

"Do you think stocks will go up or down?" a man asked a big industrial magnate in the hope of getting a good tip.
"Yes," was the magnate's answer. "I am sure they will. They never stand still for very long and they can't go sideways."

The Supreme Test

"I wonder what has become of the chess expert who used to play 24 games of chess blindfolded?"
"Oh, he's busy now dialling phone numbers in the dark."

To-day's Limerick

A young man named Cholmondley
Colquhoun
Once kept as a pet a babolquoun;
His mother said, "Cholmondley,
Do you think it quite colmondley
To feed your babolquoun with a spolquoun?"

Honest Willie

"William," said mother severely,
"there were two pieces of cake in the pantry when I went out, and there is only one now. How is that?"

"I don't know," said William.
"But it was dark, and I suppose I didn't see the other piece."

Yes, Where?

A distinguished professor of a noted university was delivering an address before a group of business men. At its conclusion a manufacturer joined issue with him.

"Natural science is of no benefit to me," he insisted.
"What is your business?" inquired the professor.
"I manufacture suspenders," was the reply.

"And where would your business be?" was the next question.
"If the law of gravity were suspended!"

All Right To Drive

"I hear you are letting your little boy drive your car."
"Yes; he's still too young to be trusted as a pedestrian."

Necessary Even Then

"A prehistoric tooth, 11 feet long,
has been unearthed in Siberia."
"Huh, that puts the six-deck sandwich at an earlier date than we had dreamed of!"

Wooling In French

"Martha, if I should ask you in French if I might announce our engagement, what would you say?"
Hastily mustering her scanty knowledge of French, the girl exclaimed, "Billet doux."
And he did.

Just The Thing!

Her newly elevated ladyship had just been introduced to a notable eloquentist, who had kindly volunteered to entertain the children at a local charity garden fete.

"It is nice of you to say you will entertain the children, Mr.
Dunton-Greene. How shall I introduce you?"

"Well, your ladyship, I usually recto o-tempore."
"Oh, 'Extremepore!' she gushed.
"I know of no piece more appropriate!"

How True!

Teacher (in geography lesson):
"Now, can anyone tell me where we find mangoes?" Knowing Little Boy: "Yes, miss, wherever woman goes."

Short And To The Point

A speaker who had been asked to make his after-dinner remarks as short as possible, arose and said:
"I have been asked to propose, the toast of Mr. Jones; and I have been told that the less said the better."

Hm-m!

"What is the difference between capital and labour?" asked the teacher.

"Please," replied the boy. "my father says it hasn't been patched up yet."

Restful Community

Visitor: "You don't mean to tell me that you have lived in this out-of-the-way place for over 30 years?"

Inhabitant: "I 'ave." Visitor: "But, really, I cannot see what you can find to keep you busy."

Inhabitant: "Neither can I—that's why I like it."

A renowned epicure says you might as well eat a boiled green blotter as spinach, but it is doubtful if youngsters can sell their parents on the change.

Forethought

"Jim's wife is certainly an economical little thing, isn't she?"
"Yes. He married her for his money."

Choice

Diner: "This meat is so tough I can hardly chew it. Hasn't a man any choice here?" Waiter: "Sure! You can take it or leave it."

Anniversary

"Just think, we have been married 24 hours."
"Yes, it seems as though it were just yesterday."

At the conclusion of a theatrical first night the author appeared on the stage, but loud booing prevented him from making a speech.
This was very unfair; the fellow merely have wanted to apologise.

ROMANY FAIR PROVES HUGE SUCCESS

RARE TREAT FOR THE KIDDIES

GYPSY ENCAMPMENT IN CHURCH GROUNDS

FANCY DRESS PARADE WINNERS

"The sun is shining to welcome the day. High-noon come to the fair!" Just two simple lines, but they describe better than anything else how the many people who were at the Romany Fair, held at St. Andrew's Church yesterday must have felt. The "fair spirit" had taken hold of young and old alike and because everybody entered into the fun of the fair full-heartedly, it proved a tremendous success.

Promptly at 3 p.m., His Excellency the Governor, Sir Andrew Caldecott, together with Lady Caldecott, accompanied by Capt. W. J. B. Cragg, arrived at the fair and were received by the Rev. J. R. Higgins, the vicar, Mrs. Higgins, Mr. F. W. Stapleton and Mr. A. C. Jeffreys. The children who attended in fancy costumes formed a guard-of-honour and the party then made their way up to the stand, in front of the church, which had been specially erected for the occasion. It was here, after she had been welcomed by the Rev. J. R. Higgins, that Lady Caldecott declared the fair open.

The whole of the church grounds was transferred into the semblance of a gypsy encampment, and in addition to the many stalls and wickets, there was the fortune-teller's camp, where "Carmen" told one's fortune for the modest sum of only one dollar. The most popular feature of the fair was the fancy dress parade in which Lady Caldecott graciously acted as one of the judges.

Address Of Welcome
In his address of welcome, the Rev. J. R. Higgins said:—

"Before I ask Lady Caldecott to declare this fair open, I want to say just two things. A word of thanks to all who have helped us and a word about the objects for which we have organised this fair again this year.

"Mr. Dawson and Mr. Kirby have been our secretaries this year and they, together with the stallholders and helpers, are worthy of praise beyond any words I can find to express it. Many too of the firms both of Hong Kong and Kowloon, the Police and the Press and a host of others have assisted us, and we say a big 'thank you.'"

"The proceeds will go to the V.D.M.A. and our own church.

That may sound a prosaic thing to say. Actually it means that away up in the interior of China some poor child will receive an education, some hospital or dispensary will be given money to help it carry on its splendid work, some one will hear the Gospel for the first time. That is what it means to give to the Victoria Diocesan Missionary Association.

"In our own Church it will assist with all the work in which we are engaged, spiritual, moral and charitable. That is what we mean when we say that a part of the money will be given to St. Andrew's."

"It is now my very pleasant privilege to welcome Lady Caldecott and His Excellency the Governor to our Gipsy Camp. It is the first time we have had the honour of their presence and we trust we do not appear too awe-inspiring. We are very harmless gypsies!"

"We appreciate more than we can say their goodness in being with us to-day. I now ask her ladyship to declare the fair open." (Applause).

Little Rickshaw Man

Lady Caldecott then declared the fair open, saying, "I have very much pleasure in declaring this fair open. I wish it every success." (Applause).

Lady Caldecott was then presented with a bouquet of violets by little Patsy Dawson, who was dressed as a rickshaw-man, pulling a miniature rickshaw behind her, and on the seat of which lay the bouquet of violets.

After Mr. A. C. Jeffreys had thanked Lady Caldecott for declaring the fair open, those present visited the different stalls. His Excellency the Governor and Lady Caldecott showing the greatest interest in the sale of work and also the side shows. His Excellency was one of the first to try his luck in the bran-tub and picked a miniature motor-car, painted green and finished in the most modern lines, as a prize.

The proceedings were enlivened by music supplied by the band of the 1st Battalion, 8th Punjab Regiment, while a Chinese troupe gave performances in the open air. Tea was served during the afternoon in a "Romany Tea Garden" under the direction of Mrs. R. Baldwin, who was helped by a number of young ladies who were charmingly attired in gipsy costumes.

That doubtful, pleading look in the eyes of Freddie, the English bulldog, seems to be occasioned by his anxiety to ascertain whether his 4-months-old mistress, Anne Reed Doherty, of Chevy Chase, Md., loves him. Anne doesn't seem to be much concerned.

Wendy's House in the Trees
proved a very popular attraction with the young girls. The house was perched in one of the trees on the grounds and the children had to climb up a specially built platform to examine the house from which each one received a present. There were also darts, coconut shies, kicking the football and all the side-shows usually found in a fair of this nature.

Fancy Dress Parade

The fancy dress parade was held on the tennis court at the back of the church, the judges being Lady Caldecott and Mesdames Reid and Morris. The prize-winners were:—

Under 7 years. Best Dressed Girl: J. Lawson. Boy: Peter Paxton.

Most original Girl: Patsy Lawson. Boy: J. Cook.

Over 7 years. Best Dressed Girl: Betty Dorkin. Boy: Philip Tyler.

Most original Girl: Patsy Smith. Boy: Robert Payne.

Altogether over 100 children took part in the fancy dress parade and some very novel costumes were seen.

Array Of Stalls

The following were the stalls:—"Hornet's Corner", where home-made provisions were sold. This stall was organised by the Women's Guild, and under the direction of Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Macaskill.

"The Chinese Curio Caravan", organised by the Victoria Diocesan Missionary Association, was under the leadership of Miss J. Smith and Mrs. E. G. Phillips. For this stall a unique collection of curios had been gathered from various parts of China and neighbouring countries.

"Gipsy Brightlights" was the stall of the Mothers' Union, and was under the charge of Mrs. Bliss and Mrs. Edmondson. Its wares consisted of knitted and fancy goods.

"The Tinkery" was arranged by the Women's Fellowship, with Mrs. Lakeman as leader. It was largely stocked by genuine Woolworth articles, specially imported from England, but in addition played the part of a "pound" stall, and was a real shopping centre for housewives.

"Bracken Hill Fare" under the management of Mrs. L. E. Kirby, Mrs. J. P. Dawson and Mrs. Jordan, sold sweets and cigarettes.

"Fairings in Plenty" was organised by Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Cocking to sell all manner of goods. "Orchard Glen" was stocked with fruit and plants. Mrs. Blair and Mrs. A. Bolton were in charge.

"Bookery Nook" as its name suggests, sold second-hand books and also music. It was arranged by Messrs. Evans and Cocking.

"The Pedlar's Pack," in charge of Mrs. Jeffreys, Mrs. Moy and Mrs. Price, was a stall specially for mon. All sorts of goods that appealed to male tastes were stocked.

CARNIVAL DANCE AT ST. ANDREW'S

Gaily Illuminated Grounds

PLEASANT END TO ROMANY FAIR

The Romany Fair, held in St. Andrew's Church grounds yesterday, was followed in the evening by a carnival dance when the hall was crowded with members of the Church and their friends.

The grounds were illuminated with fairy lights and the Church Hall, where the dancing took place, was tastefully decorated with bunting and greenery. Tables were arranged on the grounds and those who preferred sitting out found it very pleasant having tea and light refreshments in the open air.

Mr. R. F. Fincher made a very efficient M.C., and amongst those who attended were Messrs. W. H. Hirst, T. Whitley, V. C. Bond, J. J. King, F. Wong, W. Low, G. White, W. Knox, A. S. Bliss, A. MacKenzie, J. Gardiner, F. Anslow, F. Winyard, the Misses J. Brooker, G. White, P. Stringer, F. Lee, J. Broadbridge, P. Gittins, I. Gittins, A. Martin, N. Banker, E. Banker, E. Bliss, N. Gibson and many others.

CONCERT AT THE UNIVERSITY

Large Gathering At Enjoyable Show

A most enjoyable Variety Concert, which was sponsored by the women undergraduates of the University of Hong Kong in aid of charity, was held in the Great Hall, under the distinguished patronage of Lady Caldecott last evening.

Lady Caldecott, accompanied by His Excellency the Governor and Captain W. J. Cragg, was welcomed by Miss Barbara Chu, Chairman of the Women Undergraduates' Club, and introduced to Miss (Dr.) Cissy Wong, who acted as Mistress of Ceremonies throughout the evening.

Just before the commencement of the concert Miss Wong expressed her appreciation at seeing so many distinguished people among the audience and thanked everyone for their co-operation.

Among those who attended the concert were:—His Excellency the Governor and Lady Caldecott, Captain W. J. Cragg, Sir William Hornell, Professor and Mrs. R. Robertson, Professor and Mrs. L. Forster, Professor W. C. Nixon, Sir Atholl and Lady MacGregor, the Hon. Mr. and Mrs. W. Tso, Miss Tso, Professor and Mrs. E. K. M. Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Finnigan, Mrs. T. King, Misses J. and G. King, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. C. North, Lieutenant Hornell, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Graig, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Birch, the Hon. Mr. M. K. Lo, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Martin, Mr. S. F. Balfour, Miss R. Mow Fung, and many others.

Jock and Binkie Mackie of No. 7 Magazine Gap Road held a Halloween party yesterday. The following young guests attended: Angus and Conwal Murdoch, Michael and Roger Proulx, David and Marjorie Anderson, Winnie and Vivian Payne, Adrian Robertson and Margaret Morgan.

AITKENHEAD SHIELD WON BY KOWLOON

DINNER MARKS CLOSE OF BOWLS SEASON

The last lawn bowls match of the season was played yesterday when, at the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, Kowloon beat Hong Kong by 19 shots in the annual Aitkenhead Shield match.

It was a thoroughly sporting game and everybody enjoyed themselves immensely. Tea and refreshments were provided by the Hong Kong Lawn Bowls Association and special arrangements were made by the K.B.G.C. for the accommodation of the unusually large number of spectators who turned up to watch the game.

A. R. Dallah's four registered a seven after trailing 9-0, while J. Fraser's rink had two sixes. Two other rinks also scored sixes, namely S. Randle's and G. H. Sherif's.

The scores were as follows:—

Following the match, the Hong Kong Lawn Bowls Association held their annual dinner at the Kowloon Cricket Club last night, when the President, Mr. C. J. Tacchi, presided over a very representative gathering of lawn bowlers, and when the prizes won in the different tournaments held during the year were distributed.

Amongst those present, besides the president, were Messrs. R. Basa, vice-president, C. B. Hosking, Hon. Secretary, F. X. M. da Silva, R. Duncan, W. Russell, E. de Aroull, F. E. Nash, A. Hyde Lay, A. Nissim, A. E. Coates, H. A. de B. Botelho, J. G. Meyer, R. P. Phillips, J. Hoosen, A. R. Dallah and many others.

CRAIGINGOWER'S SUCCESS

The loyal toast was proposed by the president, who afterwards made a short speech in the course of which he reviewed the season's activities. He said that he wanted to congratulate the Craigingower Cricket Club on winning the First Division shield for the third year in succession and said that this was

BANKRUPTCY COURT

Adjudication Order Granted

At the Bankruptcy Court yesterday, His Honour the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, made an adjudication order in respect of A. H. Roberts, trading as the Victoria Printing Press, against whom a receiving order was made on the 17th inst.

Mr. J. B. Prentiss, the Official Receiver, told His Lordship that at the first meeting of the creditors, everybody was in favour of an adjudication order.

RIFLE SHOOT

Blandford Carries Off Honours

Over fifty members of the Hong Kong Rifle Association took part yesterday in the week-end Spoon and Practice Shoot held on the Naval Range, at Stonecutters, by courtesy of the Naval authorities. Sergeant Blandford, R.M., won the "net" spoon for the S.R. (b) Shoot, as well as the special souvenir for his three-figure score. He also won the "handicap" spoon, using an S.R. (a) rifle, a feat which, as far as can be traced from the Association's shooting records, has never before been achieved.

The leading scores returned yesterday afternoon are as follows:—

Sorcery And Magic In China

Magicians' Part In Legend

Puppets Of Enemies Pierced By Pins For Revenge

(By PHYLLIS JUBY)

THEY who practise magic, in using the proper formulae, are supposed to have the most extraordinary power. Everything is possible for him who possesses the word. For the word, as well as the formula itself, is not in China a simple sign, but has all the power of the emblem. By it the magician can draw the superior soul from a being, dominate it, abuse it. At will he can change or take away any part of the body. He casts a spell, draws a picture of a person and by piercing it with pins causes the person to suffer or die. Of old, the sorcerers and sorceresses danced in the spring rites to obtain rain; that was the first thing asked of these beings by a people whose life depended upon rain. In the character mo 魔, sorceress, is the picture of two figures dancing.

A famous Minister in 1766 B.C. forbade the practice of sorcery, and as a result the first book on the subject was written at that time. But usually the magic arts were favoured by the powerful. Shih Huang-ti, the famous founder of the Empire and destroyer of the books, gave protection only to the "useful" sciences, the sciences of magic, which were in his time the source of all knowledge and the hope of the far-seeing. The Emperor himself had gathered 10,000 magicians to seek for the drug of immortality. The next great ruler, Emperor Wu, also spent great sums on alchemy and magic. The famous poet Chi Yuen of the second century B.C. listened to the songs of sorcery and wrote his "Dramatic Songs of Old Times." At this time the sorceresses were called long, meaning the subtle breath (vitality) of the female principle, spiritual energy, the marvellous, divine, supernatural.

There are stories told of how Shun, great Emperor of ancient China, had in his youth to go through various trials and ordeals to prove his worth. He had to jump from the top of a high terrace; he landed as a bird flying. A pearl being seen in the whirl of a river, he dived and seized it from the bottom. Fire breaking out in the granary, he went through it and came out without being burned. He knew what was going to happen in the fire and the water; he had asked advice from his wives, the daughters of Yao. If he landed on the ground without accident, it was because they had taught him the art 土 of the bird. If he rose from the earth it was because they had taught him the art 土 of the dragon. The word kung, 工, means magical art, the work of women, the musical art. And, it is interesting to note, 工 is the radical of the character mo 魔, sorceress.

The sorceress possessed by a divinity is emaciated and bent; therein lies the virtue which renders her powerful. She works herself into a trance by what is called "To Shake the God," hopping and swaying as a pendulum, the divinity forcing these strange movements upon her. In time of drought it was the practice to expose the witches. They were made to dance till they fell exhausted. If necessary, when the drought was too severe, they burnt the witch as a sacrifice. In the Tao Chuan it is recorded: "A Prince of Lu wanted to burn a very thin sorceress." A commentator says that the emaciated people have their face turned toward Heaven, and there is a popular saying that Heaven having pity on them does not allow the rain to fall into their noses. This was a time of drought, so apparently the Prince believed that by getting rid of the dried up sorceress he would cause Heaven to refrain from holding back the rain. He was dissuaded by this reasoning: "If the sorceress is capable of causing drought and on one burns her the calamity will be greater." Why burn that which has itself the power of scorching? Better to drown the demon of drought.

River Worship
 The River, during the feudal epoch, was honoured at two places. In particular, at Lin-tsin and at Ye. At Ye, it was the object of a popular cult of worship presided over by sorceresses. Every year a beautiful girl was offered as victim. There was in the town a college of sorceresses. The great sorceress, aged 70, had ten apprentices under her. Every year a collection of money was made which amounted to several million pieces of cash; two or three million pieces were used for the ceremony and the rest shared among the sorceresses. Then the great sorceress visited the families in order to choose a lovely bride for the Count of the River. The elected one whom she took with her was bathed and dressed in new clothes. She had to abstain for ten days, eating nothing but pure food, beef and wine, and was shut up in a red tent specially put up for this occasion. After the ten days she was adorned as a bride and laid on a bridal bed. This was launched on the water and borne to a whirlpool where it sank. The story goes that it was due to a clever prefect, Si-men Pau, vengeance to be taken. Perhaps a sorceress will act as medium for that this custom eventually disappeared. Si-men Pau, arriving in Ye, gathered together the notables and was informed of the custom that saddened the country, the giving of brides to the Count of the River. The ceremony was described to him; he asked to be informed of the day of the feast. On that day he went with soldiers to the river bank and announced that he wished to be sure a beautiful girl had been chosen for the Count of the River.

Clever Ruse
 He looked at her and declared to the great sorceress and the older that the girl was not good-looking, and that he would send the sorceress, who was guilty of having made a bad choice, to tell the Count of the River that a mistake had been made and that the ceremony was to be put off until another bride was chosen. Thereupon the soldiers threw the great sorceress into the river. Si-men Pau waited a while and as she did not return from her misadventure he ordered that an apprentice be thrown in, and as she was delayed, a second, and then a third. He then reflected that the women did not know how to explain their cause and had the elder thrown in. Who himself did not come back. All the onlookers beat their heads against the ground until the blood flowed and their faces became the colour of ashes. Si-men Pau then stopped the ceremony and they did not dare to have it again.

The sorceress is sometimes called Wong Ye, Aunt of the Doll, or Old Woman of the Doll. Wong means a wooden doll made of willow or peach wood, a doll into which the sorceress transferred a soul, thereby killing her victim, or part of a soul, thereby seriously maiming the victim. Even to-day this puppet is in her hands a dangerous instrument for sorcery. She carries it in her sleeve and visiting clients, claims to be under the inspiration of the soul of the puppet while it visits the other world.

Curious Story
 There is a curious story illustrating the part played by these puppets: There lived in Hunan a magician who understood how to gain possession of the superior soul of others. Very numerous were they who regarded him with awe on this account, but Wu, a man of letters, refused to believe in his power. One day he disparaged him before a crowd of people. Convinced that some evil would be done to him in revenge that very night, he armed himself with a copy of the Yih King and sat down by the lamp. Presently he heard a noise on the roof like a blast of wind. A spirit in metal armour pushed open the door and entered. With a spear it attempted to stab the scholar, but he flung the Yih King at it, thus throwing it to the ground, where it changed into a paper puppet. The scholar picked this up and placed it between the leaves of the Yih King. But immediately two other spectres appeared with axes in their hands. They too were struck to the ground with the Yih King and also received a place between the leaves of that book.

At midnight the wife of the magician knocked at the door wailing and weeping. "My husband," she said, "yesterday sent my two sons to harm you, not expecting that you would catch them by some spiritual magic which we did not know was in your possession. Pray let them go that they may return to life."

"Those who came here," replied Wu, "were three men of paper and not your sons at all."
 "My husband and my two sons," was the reply, "entered into paper puppets and under that form they came here. At this moment I have three corpses in my house which will revive no more after the cock has crowed." And she repeated her request over and over until Wu said: "You have done harm to not a few and you deserve such punishment as this, but I pity you and will give you back one son." And the woman went away with one puppet.

The next day the scholar was informed that the magician and his eldest son had died and that only the younger one was alive.

Present-day Sorceresses
 There are old sorceresses to-day — even in Hong Kong. They work exclusively in private command and still use this doll, pasty on its back the date of the birth of the person on whom revenge is to be taken. Perhaps a sorceress will act as medium for that this custom eventually disappeared. Si-men Pau, arriving

Feeling Tired?

You can feel fit again—and so easily too!

Listlessness and fatigue, in nine cases out of ten, are caused by nervous trouble, and when you take Sanatogen you drink in pure strength.

Heat, worry or overwork — these are just some of the many reasons why you are suffering from over-strained nerves. Unless you find extra strength to withstand the strain, loss of youth and health is bound to be the result.

Sanatogen was made to strengthen the nerves, to revitalize tired, run-down people. To thousands, the use of Sanatogen has meant a new lease of life.

Here is the opinion of a lady, who suffered for years:—

"It is years, since I felt so well and happy. I was full of pain and depression through indigestion and nervousness, but now, through Sanatogen, the world and all that is in it, is brighter and more cheerful."

— writes Miss G. H.

Think of how much better life would be if you could once more enjoy that priceless feeling of youthful health, and if you were again full of energy and cheerfulness. And such health is really within easy reach. You need not go to a lot of trouble. Simply start taking Sanatogen three times a day and you will soon pick up.

You will notice how quickly Sanatogen satisfies the starved nervous system, how it conquers that run-down feeling. You will feel better and you will look better. You will feel a new woman, full of youthful vitality, and your friends will tell you "How well you look."

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY SECRETS

MAX FACTOR

MAKE-UP GENIUS

It started out as a summer beauty fad, this quest for pretty, well-groomed feet and legs. Bare-footed days at the beach, open sandals and stockingless legs for summer evening wear, gave the movement its impetus.

Once started, the idea took deep root. Open sandals for evening wear carried over into the autumn, and Hollywood became more than ever "foot-conscious." "Beauty from the top of your head to the tip of your toes," became the universal cry.

Startling, isn't it, to think of feet as being "made-up"? Yet that is exactly what has happened in Hollywood. Beautifying the feet corresponds to beautifying any other part of the body.

No amount of cosmetics will correct malformed toes or muscular defects. For structural foot beauty it becomes necessary to consult a doctor or chiropodist.

Choice of shades in polish for the toe-nails should logically correspond with that of the finger-nails. Screen stars have gone in for some rather bright red hues but, fortunately, it is rare that one of them indulges in such freak shades as green, black, gold or silver.

Another and less hardy carry-over from the summer season is the stockingless fad. All of Hollywood's first ladies worked over-time to improve the appearance of their legs.

A healthy, normal skin is the first important consideration. That means freedom from dark, disfiguring hair. The two fundamental ways of doing away with this blight are bleaching the hair into insignificance or completely eradicating it. For complete removal there is a choice of several methods—shaving, the use of pumice or a depilatory. According to doctors, shaving is the easiest, quickest and most sanitary.

"Beauty from the top of your head to the tip of your toes, is the new Hollywood maxim."—Max Factor.

Once the feet are brought up to a healthy par it is easy to keep them that way. Frequent bathings—followed by a stimulating and deodorizing shower of eau de cologne—allows Hollywood's toes to twinkle through a four-hour session on the dance floor without a whimper.

Paradoxically enough, an invaluable aid in keeping the skin of the feet soft and supple is—hand lotion. It can be applied in a moment and will do yeoman's duty in keeping the feet fit.

Lack of control over the toes makes the application of nail polish a ticklish job. The most successful trick to date is to place small tufts of cotton between the toes to hold them apart until the polish dries.

Of course, if the hair is light and downy, the problem of eradication doesn't exist.

The texture of the skin thus disclosed may leave much to be desired. Freckles and other discolorations stand in the way of the sought-after perfectly toned skin. Twice-a-week applications of bleach mask will lighten the discolorations and make the entire complexion tone consistent in shade.

THE best way to whiten the hands is to rub in a little lemon juice every morning and after washing the hands during the day. For very red hands you may soak them in a weak solution of chloride of lime and water. Use a very small quantity of lime, or it will burn the skin.

FROM PARIS

PARIS.—Some of the new dressy hats are actual copies of officers' kepis, the front being embroidered with metal oak leaves, laurel, blades of wheat and similar motifs.

Gold or silver hairpins make novelty scarf pins. They are pinned diagonally through knitted or loosely woven wool sports cravates, ascots and other types of scarfs. Bonbon pink suede gloves, giving the only colour touch to all black ensembles, are pretty.

Phoque or Alaska sealskin handbags, large and square in shape and, having a bracelet handle of flat fur, accompany coats of same fur.

WHEN shirring on the sewing machine, always leave double the usual distance between rows of stitching. Then pull the threads and sew again where the second row should be. This gives the shirring strength, and prevents the pulled threads from breaking.

OUR NEW YORK LETTER

DRESSY COCKTAIL SUITS

GOWNS FOR FIRST NIGHTS ARE VERY ELEGANT — WOMEN WILL DINE AT HOME IN PYJAMAS

WOMEN must make up their minds to look on after-dark dressing in a new light this Autumn. There are many gradations of costume, ranging from the simplest little cocktail and dinner suit to Vionnet's backless and hoop-skirted triumph, which strips the shoulders and covers the head with a cloud of black lace.

The cocktail and dinner suits are a definite product of the Winter of 1936-37. Fourteen inches off the floor, tight-waisted, sleeveless, high in front and V-necked in back—such are the dresses. With them go hip-length fitted jackets. This is the dinner suit theme, but it is played with many variations.

These suits can be unobtrusive and all of black; they can be dazzling, made entirely of lame. Marcel Rochas was the genius who thought of the cocktail ensemble of lame. You put it on at 6, sally forth to cocktails and stay in it until the party is over. Now you wear it with a fur neckpiece; when Winter comes along you gracefully slip your fur coat over it. The model most copied in New York has a princess waistline, draped bosom and V-neck front and back, the back being much lower than the front.

Accent On Black

Mainbocher put his accent on black, embroidered in bugles, or banded with paillettes. He made a whole group in this manner, both dresses and suits. Among them are dresses that the dignified woman will like; they are straight and simple but smartly embroidered. The slim and giddy will like the crepe dress with a paillette bolero, or the suit trimmed with paillettes at neck and hem, shown here.

First Nights

Already there is a great feeling for elegance in the atmosphere this Autumn. Jewels, flowers, headdresses point to the fact that women will be soignée to the nth degree when they go to first nights at the theatre. Smart women will wear lovely gowns with coronets matching them in colour; or perhaps the headdresses will be of sequins, or even of fur. This is a contribution from the revival of the Empire mode.

For the slender, there is nothing more flattering than the high-waisted gown, slightly eased over the bosom and falling in clinging undraped lines over the hips to the floor. In a few gowns the Empire mode is faithfully reproduced. We have seen white ones with gold fringe at the hem, and coloured ones on which the embroidery is made of beads in a matching tone.

The crowning glory of this season's evening clothes is "the" Vionnet gown. Under its full skirt is a tulle frame that holds it out; the hem is faced with stiffening. The back is bare; over the head is worn a veil of lace. Vionnet made this model in velvet and in lame. It can be worn by a debutante in white and silver, and by a matron in black velvet.

When weary of the bright lights of restaurants, ready to seek the calm beauty of her own home, the woman will slip into pyjamas. Yes, they are back again, in a more elegant version. They are cut without a ripple over the hips, and made to flare so that the division is scarcely noticeable. Some have flattering low-necked bodices, and coats of lame or brocade.

"BEWARE OF BADLY CURED FURS"

LET'S MAKE SOME

Apricot Chocolate loaf

IT IS DONE LIKE THIS.

LOAF MIXTURE

2 cups SIMPSON'S Self-Raising Flour 1 cup sugar, 1 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt 2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup butter 1 teaspoon vanilla essence

APRICOT BUTTER

1 cup "ROYAL BLUE" dried Apricots 1 cup water, slice of lemon
1 cup sugar 1 tablespoon butter

Beat the flour and salt together. Cream butter, add sugar gradually and beat till light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat till smooth and thick. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla essence. Bake in two greased and floured loaf cake tins in a moderate oven about 20 minutes. When cold, split each cake into three layers (making six layers in all). Sandwich together with Apricot Butter.

APRICOT BUTTER: Cover the apricots with hot water, add a pinch soda and allow to soak for one hour. Then drain water, cut and wash well. Place the apricots, sugar, water and lemon in a small saucepan and cook for 15 minutes, stirring constantly, add the butter and beat till mixture is smooth; remove the lemon and spread on cake. Now cover the entire cake with Chocolate Apricot Frosting.

CHOCOLATE APRICOT FROSTING: One tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon Apricot Butter, 2 tablespoons cocoa, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 3 tablespoons hot water, 2 cups sifted icing sugar. Dissolve the cocoa in the water, add the butter, lemon juice, and apricot butter, stir till blended. Gradually beat in sifted icing sugar until a thick, smooth paste is formed. Spread on to cake immediately.

Simpson's Self-Raising Flour gives the same consistently good results when it is used for pies, bread and pastry as it does with cakes and puddings.

Women who are proud of their "table" always use Simpson's—made in Australia from the world's finest wheat, scientifically milled and blended—untouched by human hands.

HAMMOND AGAIN

60 NOT OUT AT ADELAIDE

South Australia
171 Behind

73 FOR LAST WICKET!

Adelaide, Yesterday.
The M.C.C., with seven wickets in hand, have established a lead of 171 runs over South Australia as the result of the second day's play in their four-day match.
A crowd of 12,000 saw the home team resume their innings at 11 for 1 in cool but sunny weather and on a medium paced wicket. Don Bradman, despite his recent bereavement, was present in his capacity as Test selector.

The English bowling was very accurate, G. O. Allen, the skipper, bowling at his fastest for 6 for 53. The Australians' batting, however, was unimpressive and only an unexpected stand by Grimmett and Cotton, who added 73 in 62 minutes for the last wicket, saved them from complete collapse—they were 77 for 6 at lunch.

Fagg Again Falls
Commencing their second innings 71 runs ahead after the tea interval, the M.C.C. lost Fagg for a "duck", but Hammond again filled the breach with 60 not out. He reached 50 in 85 minutes as the result of confident batting, which was defensive and chanceless. It will be recalled that he scored 104 in the first innings.

Worthington, who scored 29, will probably open the innings in future in view of the failures of both Fagg and Barnett.

The stitches have been taken out of R. W. V. Robins's finger and he hopes to play within a fortnight. Ames is also showing signs of improvement.

The summarised scores are as follows:
M.C.C.: 233 (Hammond 104, Verity 31, F. Ward 5 for 79, C. V. Grimmett 2 for 62 and 100 for 3, Hammond 60 not out, Fagg 0, Worthington 29).
South Australia: 162 (C. V. Grimmett 33, Cotton 37 not out, V. Y. Richardson 29, G. O. Allen 6 for 53).

HAMMOND'S RECORD

Hammond's figures for the four matches played so far are given below:—
141 v Western Australia, at Perth
107 v Western Australia (combined) at Perth
40 v Clare (one day) at Clare
104 v South Australia, at Adelaide.
60 not out v South Australia, at Adelaide.

to join this conference yesterday and to congratulate the Generalissimo on his birthday at the same time. Madame Chiang also went there from Shanghai by air yesterday at 7.30 a.m., arriving at the city at 1 p.m. The Generalissimo and Madame Chiang are attending the ceremony at Loyang this morning.

It is learned that the grand congratulatory ceremony is taking place at the old Ming Palace at Nanking. The ceremony is presided over by Mr. Wu Teh-cheng, Mayor of Greater Shanghai, and the number of people in attendance is expected to be over 200,000, including representatives of all the organisations in the country and diplomatic bodies. General Ho Ying-ching, the Minister of War, is instructed to represent the Generalissimo and to accept the planes, his birthday presents which will be presented to Mr. Lin Sen, the Chairman of the National Government of the Republic of China, as the Generalissimo's presents to the country.

Miss Faye Cotton, performer in the Fort Worth Frontier centennial, has not only her share of good looks but also displays more than her share of jewels. She is shown wearing the famous crown jewels presented to Empress Marie Louise by Napoleon, valued at G.$500,000.

MILITARY COUP D'ETAT AT BAGHDAD

Serious Situation Envisaged

PEACE OF MIDDLE EAST THREATENED

London, Yesterday.

Far-reaching consequences in the Middle East are likely to be the outcome of the military coup d'etat which took place without bloodshed in Baghdad yesterday, according to observers abroad. Yassin's Government, which included Jafar Pasha, Iraq's strong man, had pursued a policy of good relations with Iraq's neighbours, including Palestine, Saudi Arabia, Trans-Jordan and Afghanistan. Hikmat Sulaiman in the past opposed the Anglo-Iraq Alliance. He belonged to the Cabinet in 1933 which was dissolved following the trouble in the Middle Euphrates when revolt was stirred up among the Kurdish tribes.

ARMS SMUGGLING

Paris: The newspapers report the smuggling of arms from Syria across the Iraq frontier by Assyrians and Syrian nomads, their aim being a revolt against Baghdad and Damascus. The arms belonged to the French garrisons evacuating under the terms of the recent Franco-Syrian Treaty. The smugglers assert that now that France is leaving Syria, Christians are now in a minority and must arm.

RACIAL ISSUE

Cairo: Apparently the racial issue is behind the Baghdad coup d'etat. The latest reports state that the trouble is apparently a repercussion of the happenings in Palestine which resulted in anti-Jewish feeling. Isolated attacks against Jews are reported to have occurred, some with fatal results.

CONSCRIPTION EDICT

Jerusalem: The Iraq coup d'etat is believed in well-informed circles here to be due to divergences of opinion over the enforcement of military conscription upon nomad tribes in Iraq. Sidkey Bey wanted to stamp out a revolt of the Shia tribes in the Middle Euphrates region and demanded an army capable of reinforcement, for which conscription was necessary. But the Government adopted a more moderate attitude, not pressing the issue of conscription.

It is anticipated that the new Cabinet will enforce the general conscription law. If so there is likely to be general trouble, as all the tribes are opposed to the idea. Sidki is known to favour ruthless methods.

It is believed that the trouble,

Scotland Beat Ireland At Belfast

40,000 At International Soccer Match

Belfast, Yesterday.

A large gathering of 40,000, which had to be controlled by the Police to prevent encroaching on the pitch, saw Scotland secure their 40th victory against Ireland in the Association Football series here to-day, when the Scots won a stirring encounter by 3 goals to 1 after sharing two goals at the interval.

The outstanding feature of the clash was the magnificent Irish defence in the first half, which prevented the Scots from breaking through until a few minutes from the interval.

Scotland: — Dawson (Rangers); Anderson (Hearts), Ancell (Newcastle); Massie (Aston Villa) Simpson (Rangers), Brown (Rangers); Munro (Hearts), Walker (Hearts), McCulloch (Brentford), Napier (Derby) and Duncan (Derby).
Ireland: — Breen (Belfast Celtic); Cook (Everton), Fulton (Belfast Celtic); McMillan (Manchester United), Jones (Hibernians), Mitchell (Chelsea); Kernaghan (Belfast Celtic), McCullough (Manchester City), Martin (Notts Forest), Coulter (Everton) and Kelly (Derry City). — Reuter.

The following have been the results for the past 10 seasons:

1927-28	Ireland	1-0
1928-29	Scotland	7-3
1929-30	Scotland	3-1
1930-31	Drawn	0-0
1931-32	Scotland	3-1
1932-33	Scotland	4-0
1933-34	Ireland	2-1
1934-35	Ireland	2-1
1935-36	Scotland	2-1
1936-37	Scotland	3-1

In the 49 matches played to date, Scotland have won 40, Ireland 5, while four have been drawn. The first match was played at Belfast in 1884, when Scotland won by five clear goals. Scotland secured their biggest victory in 1901 when they won by eleven clear goals, while Ireland's biggest win over Scotland occurred in 1903 in Glasgow when they won by two clear goals.

In last year's match, played at Tynecastle, Edinburgh, on November 13, Scotland won by 2 goals to 1, Walker and Duncan scoring for the winners, while Kelly netted Ireland's only goal.

In the first match of the International series, this year, Wales beat England, at Cardiff, on October 17, by the odd goal in three.

ART EXHIBITION

Two Artists' Work
On View

INTERESTING DISPLAY

The combined exhibitions of water-colours and oil paintings of Mr. Lee Byng and Mr. Yee Bon, respectively, which was opened by Major V. E. Ducloux, the Canadian Trade Commissioner, on Thursday, October 23, at the Gloucester Hotel, drew crowds of interested visitors during the past week. His Excellency the Governor purchasing an oil painting from Mr. Yee Bon and two water-colour drawings from Mr. Lee Byng.

The exhibitions conclude tomorrow afternoon.

According to a report made to the police by a 19-year-old Chinese girl, Rosemary Lam, of No. 169, Fook Wah Street, two men robbed her of a bracelet, valued at $50, as she was ascending the stairway of No. 281, Cheung Sha Wan Road at about 5 p.m. last Friday. Two Chinese suspected to be connected with the above incident have been arrested.

If it develops, will divert attention from Palestine and the Pan-Arab issue. On the other hand if the Iraqi tribes revolt there is a likelihood that this will lead to general unrest in the Middle East. — Reuter.

LORRY DRIVER CHARGED

Alleged Negligent Driving

COMPLAINANT

Commander G. F. Hole, the Harbour Master, appeared at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning as the complainant in a case in which a lorry driver, Lai Nin, was charged with driving lorry No. 265 without due care and caution, and with failing to obey a traffic signal in Stubbs Road last Saturday, October 24.

Outlining the case before Mr. W. Schofield, Sergeant Hill, of the Gough Hill Police Station, stated that the complainant was driving up Magazine Gap Road. On approaching the junction of Stubbs Road and Magazine Gap Road he obeyed the traffic signal and stopped his car to allow another car to pass by. When the traffic signal at light changed to green, he started his car and proceeded on his journey. Suddenly he heard the rumbling of a lorry coming from the opposite direction, and realising what would happen if he continued to drive along, the complainant stopped his car just in time to avoid a disastrous accident. If the complainant had not stopped, concluded Sergeant Hill, he would probably have been on his way to the mortuary.

The case was remanded to 11.30 a.m. next Thursday.

SLIGHTLY

The following market report is provided by Mr. C. A. L. Rickett, Secretary of the H. K. Share-brokers' Association:—

The market has remained quiet during the week with few changes worthy of record. Prices of local stocks were inclined to give way slightly at the close, although very few shares were offering. Banks and Unions, however, advanced to $1,670 and $604 respectively.

A quiet market was also encountered in the Philippine Mining section, but prices generally have been well maintained. San Maurice eased off, showing a decline of 80 centavos since the beginning of the week. Paracale Gumans were marked down from 92 to 85 centavos, with buyers at the reduced rate at the close of business. Demonstrations remained popular, with prices fluctuating between one Peso and one Peso ten. Of the higher priced stocks Benguet Consolidated advanced to fifteen Pesos. A steady market is reported from Manila at the close.
